PARADE TO BE OMITTED

Veterans Will Lay Flowers On Graves of Over 600 Departed Soldiers Here

BUSINESS of Santa Ana will pause tomorrow and residents of Santa Ana and vicinity will join in paying homage to those who fought in past wars for the preservation of this nation and for principles of this government.

At the Santa Ana and Fairhaven cemeteries more than 600 graves of veterans of the Civil, Spanish-American and World wars will be decorated.

No plans have been made for a parade of any kind during the day, the feebleness of many of the G. A. R. veterans making the former custom of parades impossible.

Members of the various patriotic orders will go to the cemetery as they please for participation in the programs there in the forenoon.

Santa Ana Legion post will conduct services at the mausoleum in Fairhaven cemetery at 9 o'clock, following the decoration of graves of comrades. Sam Collins, deputy district attorney, will deliver the principal address. There will be music by the bugle and drum corps and by the Salvation Army.

Sons of Veterans will decorate the graves of G. A. R. veterans and members of Calumet Camp will perform a similar service at the burial plots of Spanish-American War veterans.

At 10:30 a. m., these organizations will co-operate in services at the monument to the unknown dead, located in Santa Ana cemetery near the Santa Clara avenue entrance to the burial grounds. The program is being provided by Orange post, G. A. R., in keeping with the past custom of the Santa

MEXICAN LABORER Run Down, Killed By Truck Today

Sisto Vasquez, a Mexican laborer working near the outlet of the Santa Ana river, on the Coast highway, near Huntington Beach, was almost instantly killed at 12:30 p. m. today when he was run down by a truck driven by M. C. O'Neill, of 814 East Twenty-ninth street, Los Angeles, according to report made to the sheriff's office.

The body was removed to the Dixon funeral parlors where an inquest probably will be held by Coroner Charles D. Brown tomorrow.

INDIAN BODIES ASK DOMINION STATUS TODAY

Request From Chambers of Commerce Made to Viceroy

By WEBB MILLER
DOMBAY, India, May 29.—(UP)

The disorganization of Indian business resulting from the independence campaign impelled the Federation of Indian Chambers of Commerce and Industry today to solicit Viceroy Lord Irwin for a promise of immediate dominion status.

At their meeting, the conferees returned basically to the existing law which permits the tariff commission to adjust rates upward or downward by 50 per cent with presidential approval.

The new arrangement is said to be even more acceptable to President Hoover as the old compromise reform proposal nipped by Vice President Curtis in the senate ruling Tuesday.

The latest draft of the provision is understood to have been sent to the White House late last night when it received private presidential endorsement.

Elated at the swift agreement, Chairman Smoot of the Senate conference announced he would return his battered bill to the Senate floor later in the day to renew the drive for its enactment.

Thus the Democrats lost by the flurry which they started Tuesday when Senator Barkley, Democrat of Kentucky, lodged a point of order that the conferees exceeded their authority in writing the flexible compromise. They sought to restrict the power of the president and the tariff commission, but the latest agreement gives both the same power as in existing law.

Under the original compromise, the tariff commission would fix a

The Rangoon rioting resulted from attempts to break a strike of dock workers there. Mulmein and Indian workers were imported to replace Burmese strikers who sought higher wages, and the latter engaged in fights with strike-breakers.

NEW PLANE BEING BUILT FOR HAWKS

LOS ANGELES, May 29.—(UP)—Gangsters, with shotguns concealed in golf bags, carried out a mission of vengeance that ended early today in a "ride" for their unidentified victim, whom they encountered and shot in a dark North Side alley.

One of the gunmen was captured by two night watchmen, who seized him from the running board of the "ride" car as it started to speed away.

The gangster was identified as Sam Hunt, who previously had been arrested in company with members of the Capone liquor syndicate.

Police looked to the indictment yesterday of Ralph Capone, brother of "Scarface Al," on liquor conspiracy charges for a possible motive for the shooting, the victim of which might have been a government informant.

Cannon, militant leader of the Anti-Smith forces in Virginia, is to appear beginning Wednesday, for examination concerning his stock market and political activities.

During the examination yesterday Deets Pickett, research secretary of the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, the committee uncovered a document which bitterly assailed the candidacy of Alfred E. Smith, Democratic presidential nominee.

The document, the 1928 report of Dr. Clarence True Wilson, secretary of the board, termed Smith a "man whose unbroken advocacy of the saloon, brothel and gambling hall cannot be questioned by any act of his 30 years."

Pickett said the board opposed Smith on the prohibition issue alone, and not on religious grounds.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—(UP)—Additional information concerning the activities of Methodist organization in the 1928 presidential campaign will be sought by the Senate lobby committee next week when it begins the long delayed questioning of Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal church, south.

CONSTITUTION SUBJECT OF MUNRO'S WINNING ORATION

The speech on the Constitution of the United States, with which George Munro, of Santa Ana, won first place in the national oratorical contest conducted by the Presbyterian General assembly, at Cincinnati, O., last night, follows:

The Constitution of the United States is one of those extremely rare products of statesmanship the excellence of which has not been impaired by the vicissitudes of changing times, the criticism of scholars, or the resentment of political factions.

The idea that it was struck off in haste by the momentary inspiration of a man or group of men, has not stood the test of historical analysis. But the far-reaching wisdom of the framers has been emphasized as proof that the constitution was a development of well-known principles of English government, modified and adapted to the requirements of the newly enfranchised American nation.

The Constitutional Convention built a structure adapted to the needs of centuries, upon the deep and sure foundations of the principles of English liberty which had been achieved in 600 years of struggle. None of its provisions ran counter to the fundamental political principles of any considerable number of the American people.

One of the most interesting and most discussed parts of this Constitution is the Eighteenth amendment.

The Eighteenth amendment was not adopted as is so often said, in haste or without due deliberation upon the part of the people of the United States. For some fifty years the subject of prohibition had been under discussion throughout the country, and at the time of the ratification of the amendment 33 states of the Union had adopted prohibition.

After the amendment was submitted to the states for ratification, all except two states ratified it. No amendment to the Constitution has ever been adopted after so prolonged a consideration as was the Eighteenth amendment.

Whatever its merits or demerits may be, there can be little controversy over the proposition that it was a deliberate act at the time it was written into the Constitution of the United States. It was perfectly clear at the time that the people intended to promulgate a national policy and that policy they inserted into their charter of government.

The rioters seized his revolver and pushed him into a ditch, beating him severely. J. W. Atkins, managing agent for the Dacca Electric company, fired his revolver at the crowd, wounding one.

The injured were taken to a hospital.

HOLLYWOOD, May 29.—(UPI) — Virgil Lucas, 24, was not expected to live after being shot by police here early today.

Officers Everett Hammond and Everett Maney reported that they started to investigate an apparent drug store robbery when they encountered Lucas, who fled.

The officers opened fire on the man, whose gun failed to work. One bullet hit him in the back.

Buchanan, pastor of the First Christian church, Santa; "America," by audience; benediction by the Rev. Mr. Pearson.

The Eighteenth Amendment is the only requirement in the United States Constitution that deals with the personal condition of the individual citizen except as involved in treason. It does put up to the individual citizen a duty specifically his own. It is enforceable concurrently by the states. Therefore there is an amendment and the laws under it that specifically make it our duty in a local way to carry out the general constitutional provision and the laws under it.

No state can pass laws abridging the rights of a citizen of the United States. That is interfering with his personal liberty; but when two-thirds of the states amend the Constitution, it becomes not only nationally inculcated but locally requisite to conone personal liberty on the basis of the greatest good for the greatest number. Hence there is no validity in the contention that the individual liberty of the "wet" is interfered with when the mechanism legally defining what that liberty is, is concretely set forth in the Constitution and the law.

The law has its great importance, but we must not depend only upon the law to promote temperance.

So long as the Constitution stands, one thing is more fundamental than prohibition, and that is the enforcement and the upholding of the Constitution and the Law.

We are discussing these days the question of what we shall do with reference to amending this provision of the Constitution of the United States. The proposal is not to amend the Constitution of the United States but to modify the statute which was passed, leaving the enforcement of the principle of the Constitution and the protection of the integrity of the Constitution to the respective states, while the National Government itself entirely abandons that obligation. It is seriously proposed that the federal government shall abandon the interpretation and enforcement of its own great charter, and through sheer cowardly, contemptible expediency leave it to forty-eight different states with forty-eight different rules and standards to enforce and uphold it.

The great Civil war was fought over that principle. It is a deliberate evasion of the Constitution and the Law, a nullifying and an annihilating of the charter under which we live. It is disloyalty to the first principle of a Federal Union and a violation of the oath which every Federal officer takes when he takes office.

It is the duty and obligation of every loyal and patriotic American citizen to obey the constitution and the law. Every law that is passed is passed for a specific result; that is to say, to meet a specific purpose.

In view of what our race has suffered through the evils of strong drink, in view of the agony which fathers, mothers and children have suffered from it, in view of the fact that its suppression means the reduction of poverty, sorrow, disease and crime, we would be willing and glad to make such surrender of our personal liberties, or of our tastes as this law calls for, and to see, prohibition fully and fairly tried.

What a magnificent thing it would be if for the aid of those who are endangered by strong drink we should all give our full support to the prohibition laws. What better exhibition could there be of the idealism and patriotism of America than such willing surrender of our preferences and tastes for the good of all, and for the help especially of our weaker fellowmen.

Whether prohibition stays or goes, the Constitution should be maintained and supported as it is written by all law-abiding people until it is changed in the manner pointed out by the Constitution.

Obedience to the law is the rock foundation upon which our whole construction rests. To disregard it is to strike at the life of the nation.

And while disrespect for law applies to all laws, statutes and enacted laws, there is a more sacred import to that rule of conduct when the Constitution itself is involved. It is the charter of our government, defining and guaranteeing the rights of the citizen, prescribing the limitations of government. To disregard it is to spell the end of order and representative governments. It is also the organic and fundamental law of our nation and no article, section, or clause, should be altered, modified or changed except by and through the same agencies that created it.

indictment accusing Lewis of having offered $20,000 to Mrs. Caroline Love, a juror, for a "not guilty" vote in the 1928 Julian conspiracy trial.

OVER $600 IN VALUABLES ARE CARRIED AWAY

Burglars, whom police believe to have been professionals, broke into the Harry Riley garage and show rooms at South Main and Myrtle streets, some time last night, looted the safe and escaped with more than $600 worth of valuables, including diamond rings and currency.

Entry into the place was made through a window on the east side of the building, after a window pane had been broken.

The thieves then stopped long enough in the garage to select several tools before attacking the safe, in the office of the building. The vault was prised open and all the locks on the inner drawers were broken.

A total of $197.70 in cash, three diamond rings, one worth $150, one $75 and one worth $40; three $2.50 gold pieces, four $5 gold pieces and 13 $10 gold pieces were taken from the safe, Riley reported.

The $157.50 in gold coins and the three diamond rings were the personal property of Riley. The cash was owned by the firm.

The burglary was discovered early this morning when Hunter Adams, janitor at the display rooms, opened the building for the day. He immediately reported the burglary to the police and Officers Adams Homes and Smithwick made an investigation. The burglary is the largest reported here this year.

DEATHS

A WORD OF COMFORT

A great spiritual leader writes, "Salvation means to me the bringing to its best of all that is best within me."

Take up your ideal, however weak and unworthy you think yourself to be, and renewed hope and courage will well up in your heart.

God does not expect you to perform "miracles" and He knows how your heart aches and how your steps falter under your new burden of sorrow.

He will help you to "bring your best to its best" if you live his way. It will take your lifetime to complete the task, but you will constantly be encouraged to discover that you are making a little progress.

Tway outlined the operations of builders exchange and the chain that leads to identification with the national organization. He said that the building groups identified with the organization are endeavoring to

Quick Pile Relief

No Salves or Cutting

Pile sufferers can only get quick, safe and lasting relief by removing the cause—bad blood circulation in the lower bowel. Cutting and salves can't do this—an internal remedy must be used. HEMEROID, the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, succeeds, because it removes this blood congestion and strengthens the affected parts.

HEMEROID tablets as sold by druggists everywhere, have such a wonderful record for quick and lasting relief, that Schramm-Johnson Drug Co. always sell them with guarantee of money-back if they do not end all pile suffering.—Adv.

TART EXONERATED IN KIDNAPING CASE

Sarah Rounds Tent

Sarah A. Rounds Tent No. 10, Daughters of Union Veterans, welcomed two new members at yesterday's meeting in K. P. hall, a mother and daughter, Mrs. Belle McConnell and Mrs. Minnie McClure, who were initiated into the organization.

Business details also included the various reports of 31 calls made; 18 bouquets delivered and $84 expended in patriotic work. The tent received its first general orders from the new department president, Mrs. Erma Hard Chaplin of Oakland, elected at the recent convention in Riverside. In the communication, Mrs. Chaplin informed the Daughters that the first president of the department of California and Nevada, Mrs. Lizzie Belle Cross, had died recently at her home in Los Angeles.

During the afternoon, all the Daughters joined with enthusiasm in celebrating the birthday of M. Hungerford, a Civil war veteran and member of Sedgwick post G. A. R. who was adopted several years ago as "camp father." He was 88 years old last Sunday, and yesterday the anniversary was happily celebrated, with red and white carnations for him from the tent, a box of assorted fruits and candies from the Past Presidents' club, and a birthday cake gleaming with candles, which was served with fruitcake.

The Daughters are planning to be at Birch park all day today to fashion wreaths and bouquets for Decoration day on Friday, and have asked the trolleymen send as many flowers as possible, as the need is urgent. For the past two years, the Daughters and the W. R. C. have failed to have enough to decorate the 500 veterans' graves in Fairhaven cemetery.

In response to a question as to whether it is possible in public building projects to specify that work must be done by local people, Tway said that officials had no alternative but to award to the lowest bidder regardless of location. He pointed out, however, that employment, for instance, of Los Angeles architects gave Los Angeles contractors an advantage over local contractors in the fact that plans and specifications are passed to Los Angeles builders first. R. C. McMillan, president of the exchange, emphasized the point further by adding that when plans are given to local contractors in time to give them opportunity to make complete estimation of costs, local firms usually were successful in bidding against Los Angeles concerns. He asserted that too frequently Los Angeles architects employed on local work gave the plans and specifications first to Los Angeles contractors and then sent them here just before bids are opened, with the result that builders here do not have time and opportunity to prepare full estimates.

Tway was introduced by Walter Sorenson, who recited a comical Scandinavian verse. Vocal numbers by Maurice Phillips and readings by Miss Della Bixby were other features of the program.

The Laxative With Highest Endorsement

When you get out of bed feeling headache, sluggish, weak, half-sick, here's a simple measure that will have you feeling yourself again in a jiffy.

Take a little Phillips Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water—or lemonade. Two to four tablespoonfuls is the usual adult dose. Taken in lemonade, Phillips Milk of Magnesia acts like citrate of magnesia. Take it like this an hour before breakfast. By the time you leave home, you'll be surprised by your improvement.

As a mild, safe, pleasant laxative, Phillips Milk of Magnesia has the highest medical endorsement. As an anti-acid to correct sour stomach, gas, indigestion, biliousness, it has been standard with doctors for over fifty years. To know its quick relief in digestive and eliminative troubles of men, women, children—and babies—is to keep a bottle always handy.

Full directions for all its uses come with every bottle. All drug stores have the generous 25c and 50c sizes.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of the Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1875.—Adv.

Could Write a Book About It

"Nine years ago after my little girl was born dead, I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for about four months. The next year I became the mother of a fine 11 pound baby boy. After he was born, I kept on with the medicine to build me up. Four months ago I was nervous and rundown and suffered from other troubles which I knew Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would relieve so I started taking it and now I feel fine again. Many of my friends could write a book on the good the Vegetable Compound has done them."—Mrs. W. Driver Cleared Of Blame In Death Of Seal Beach Child

Eddie Kupferle, driver of a car that caused the death of Alvin Blatz, 2 1/2, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Blatz, at Seal Beach Tuesday, was cleared of blame at a coroner's inquest held in Long Beach yesterday afternoon. Funeral services were held today.

Completion of arrangements to attend the Memorial Services at Fairhaven Cemetery were made last night at the regular business meeting of the Jack Fisher Chapter, Disabled American Veterans of the World War. This information was issued by Commander H. O. Rasmussen who requested all D. A. V.'s to meet at the American Legion Hall, Santa Ana, Friday at 8:30 a.m. This unit will then go in a body to the Mausoleum at Fairhaven and after the memorial services will decorate the graves of all their comrades.

Louis A. Riehl, past commander of the Jack Fisher Chapter, visited the Soldiers Home at Napa recently and reported on the grave condition of the Hospital building due to fire hazard and the local Chapter went on record as favoring a sufficient appropriation to construct fireproof buildings, both for the Hospital and Barracks. A year's residence in California is the qualification for admittance to the Soldiers Home, according to Commandant Nelson Holderman, who has been a member of the Jack Fisher D. A. V.

On Friday afternoon the members and their families will participate in a Golf tournament thru the kind co-operation of W. G. Clark of the Tom Thumb Golf Course. Comrade Rasmussen announces that members should be at 1201 So. Main Street at 2 p.m.

Service Officer Edwards reported that the Veterans Bureau have some 1500 claims filed at the present time but they are doing their utmost to expedite these claims as fast as is humanly possible.

Vacation Season Opens As Tourists Head For Beach

HARBOR IMPROVEMENTS BRING PROGRESS

Photograph at top of above group is an air view of the Balboa business and amusement section. A typical Newport-Balboa beach throng is seen in the center picture and below is shown the beach house of the Balboa Palisades club, Corona del Mar, recently acquired by the California Institute of Technology for marine research. Inset in circle is a surfboard rider at Corona del Mar, where surfboard conditions are said to be better than at any other beach in the world except Hawaii.

MOTOR TRANSIT GETS OUT FINE OUTING BOOKS

In an effort to aid people in planning their vacations, selecting the resorts and camps to suit their desires and pocketbooks and to tell how the various places are best reached, the Motor Transit Stages have just issued a very instructive and beautiful booklet in 4-colors, according to A. M. Thomas, local agent for the big stage system.

"Questionnaires were sent out to all the resorts of southern California and the data received was compiled into a booklet titled, "Where to Enjoy Your Vacation," remarked agent Thomas today. "We have catalogued some 150 resorts, hotels, camps, etc., giving a description of the resorts together with the fares, how to get there, the elevation of each, and other information that it desirable in selecting a place to spend the most here."

GOOD BOOK IS BIG TREAT ON VACATION DAYS

In most of the word-pictures drawn of the more pleasurable highlights of vacation, a book figures as a necessary accessory. It complements the lemonade glass and the hammock as perfectly as it does the after-deck of a yacht or the stern-sheets of a skiff. It is standard holiday impedimenta, quite often that and nothing more. The individual whose stay-at-home literary diet consists mainly of newstands matter looks forward to the brief vacation as an opportunity to "catch up on my back reading". Is it strange that this same vacationist, in the midst of his holiday, generally resolves to wait until he is home again before attending the job? Without getting pedagogical, we may as well state that reading is a habit and must be cultivated to be enjoyed.

T. R.'s Literary Prescription

Theodore Roosevelt, probably the greatest combination of reader and sportsman in recent times, wrote: "I am sometimes asked what books I advise men or women to take on holidays in the open. With the reservation of long trips, where bulk is of prime consequence, I can only answer: The same books one would read at home."

In other words, a man who shuns books at home will certainly find reading simple a drudgery away from home. If he has developed a taste for biography in his private library, he will probably find personal histories more pleasurable than mystery tales by camp fire light.

Quite naturally there are plenty of exceptions to prove the rule. Many a busy man or woman who has developed a taste for books during school or college years finds the indulgence of lengthy reading difficult in the midst of pressing business or house-keeping problems. A vacation in a different environment offers a chance to satisfy these book cravings just as it presents opportunities for sport unobtainable at home.

Big Books for Long Trips

Again to paraphrase Roosevelt: A long trip, such as a world cruise, a summer in the mountains or by the sea, encourages the reading of a bulky volume that might be too formidable at home where many months of short sittings would be required to finish the book.

HEALTH CHIEF GIVES POINTS ON SWIMMING

With the opening of the 1930 swimming season the campaign of the state department of public health against needless drownings is also inaugurated. Warnings issued by the department point out that an average of nearly 350 deaths each year have occurred during the past 10 years, exclusive of the 300 drownings attributed to the St. Francis dam disaster in 1928.

Lives of many persons who are apparently drowned could be saved by proper methods of artificial respiration, according to Dr. K. H. Sutherland, Orange county health officer. A brief summary of the proper system follows:

1. Lay the patient on his stomach, with nose and mouth free to breathe.

2. Kneel over the patient, placing the palms on the small of the back, fingers resting on the ribs, little finger touching the lowest rib, thumb and fingers in natural position.

3. Arms straight, swing weight of body on patient, then swing back, removing pressure completely continuing twelve to fifteen times a minute.

4. Continue without interruption until natural breathing is restored, for four hours or longer if necessary.

5. Patient should be stripped to waist, during artificial respiration and as soon as revived stimulants should be given. Patient should be watched and if natural breathing stops resume respiration.

California's popular swimming places are provided by life guards as required by law, who are thoroughly trained in methods of artificial respiration, but there are many places and many times where a knowledge of this method might save lives.

Records kept by the state department of health show that nearly all persons who are drowned are men and about half of all drownings occur between the ages of 10 to 19 years and 35 to 54 years, showing that persons in the span from 20 to 34 are better able to protect themselves against possible hazards of accidental drowning.

MOVIE OUTFIT MOST POPULAR ON VACATIONS

Not so long ago, the typical winter revival of vacation memories consisted chiefly in poring over the old family album, filled from "sky to river" with snapshots of Cousin Bess astride a burro at the Grand Canyon and Aunt Jane on the boat deck of the Mauretanian; pictures, all, that were taken on vacation and most of them specially posed and therefore unnatural.

But the world does move, and today we find the two-by-four snap supplemented if not replaced in many cases by spirited pictures of the same burro kicking, while Cousin Bess holds on for dear life, unmindful of the clicking of the movie camera, and of shipboard friends actually doing their "six times around is a mile" on the identical liner.

It's Worth Extra Expense

Within a year or two the home movie outfit . . . camera, projector and screen . . . has become a necessary luxury. Vacation brings it its greatest utility. Holiday recollections are captured forever at the press of a small lever and come to life again at the snap of a switch. At least two or three manufacturers are producing equipment ideal for vacation movie taking. In every case the camera is small and compact, taking up no more room than the familiar snapshot camera. Some models appear in colors to match the feminine ensemble. Although the initial outlay is considerably more than for a "still" camera, demanding as it does a projector to show the films, the thrill of seeing familiar scenes and persons move and live upon the screen . . . perhaps in color . . . more than repays the investment from out point of view.

ALLEN WHITE OPENS LAGUNA DANCE SEASON

The internationally known entertainer, Allen White again brings new life and entertainment to Laguna Beach. White has leased the Cabrillo ballroom and the Beach and Friday evening opens with Fred Hart and his 11-piece orchestra.

White, a few years ago managed this ballroom and made it one of the most popular dancing spots on the coast, with his Collegiate orchestra. He intends to bring back this popularity with the new talent which he is now directing. The Cabrillo ballroom at Laguna has been remodeled to take care of the new features. White will introduce.

NEWPORT BAY— Watering Place de Luxe Of the People, By the People, For the People — of Orange County

Southern California's greatest and finest aquatic paradise is right here in Orange County.

Residents of Orange County have in their own county, close and accessible to everywhere, the best place to boat, swim, fish, play, rest and live.

Residents of other counties are recognizing in ever-increasing numbers that here at Newport Bay is the Atlantic City of the West. It's cooler here in summer.

Only protected, still water bay on the California Coast for hundreds of miles.

Here YOU can enjoy all the advantages of the best beaches anywhere—the City of Newport Beach owns miles and miles of clean, white, wide, ocean beach—and within practically a stone's throw of the rolling surf you also have the ONLY protected land-locked bay.

Whether you can stay an hour, a day, a week, a year or forever, see Newport Bay now. Unless you have seen it recently you will hardly know the place.

The City's $200,000 improvement at the entrance to the Harbor is well along. This provides for two rock groins to protect the jetty and beach, also a channel through the entrance 250 feet wide and 15 feet deep at low tide.

Rapid progress is also being made on the gigantic Lido Isle development—the contract provides for initial improvements, bridge, streets, water, sewers, lights, etc.—costing $1,170,000, a record for all California.

Several inside harbor improvements are also being carried on, a channel is to be dredged around Lido Isle, under the new bridge, a new yacht basin is being put in north of Balboa Island, a dredging program is under way at Bay Island.

Work is soon to start on the new $410,000 Newport Harbor Union High School on a fine 25-acre site at Fifteenth and Irvine, largest site for exclusively high school purposes in Orange County.

Building so far this year is ahead of 1929, which was larger than 1928. Most of this building is residential.

Newport Harbor is making great progress. Every part of the Harbor District—Newport Beach, Corona del Mar, Newport Heights, Balboa Island, Lido Isle—is forging ahead.

The Twelfth Annual Tournament of Lights, the West's greatest illuminated aquatic spectacle, will be held at Newport Bay, Saturday, July 12.

Now is the time to plan an entry in this unique "Big Parade" of lighted craft. Brilliant lights and soft music "on a night like this" offers an unusual medium for community and other advertising.

There is only one Tournament of Lights—at Newport Bay.

Both the Pacific Coast and Southern California yacht regatta will be held at Newport Bay this year—August 4 to 9.

This will be the first time these two events were ever held in Orange County—and on only one other occasion, once at Santa Barbara, were both ever held at any place at the same time.

Yachtmen expect the greatest meet of pleasure craft in the history of the West. It will also mark the completion of the new harbor improvements.

The business men of this community have made and are making conditions more enjoyable than ever for you. Recreation facilities—boating, bathing, fishing, dancing, etc.—are better and more diversified this year than ever before. More residential facilities of every kind, too.

Whether you stay for a short or a long time, you are invited to come and see what the Harbor District has done during the last few months, what it is doing now and what it is planning.

GARDENING IS SOLUTION OF CHILD'S GAGE

Ma! Oh, Ma, what cha doin'? Ma, gimme somethin' to eat! Ma, kin I have a quarter? Ma, will you take me to the circus? Oh Ma . . ."

School is out. Ten weeks of botheration...10 weeks of tripping over John and Jane at every step...10 weeks in which to plead "Yes, children. All right. Now leave me alone for a little while and let me get things done." Ten weeks of counting the days till the kids will be back at school again and affairs at home will resume their normal course. As a well-known cartoonist has so humorously depicted...is it any wonder that mothers get gray?

And yet...whose fault is it? Wouldn't you itch for something to do...something constructive...during those long summer months if your regular work was taken off your hands? After all, children are people, and we parents should be glad and thankful that they are looking for something to do. Irrepressible youth will not be denied. Their alert minds and active bodies want to be doing something every minute. Only they have to be shown. Their efforts must be guided into constructive channels.

The "Job Angle"

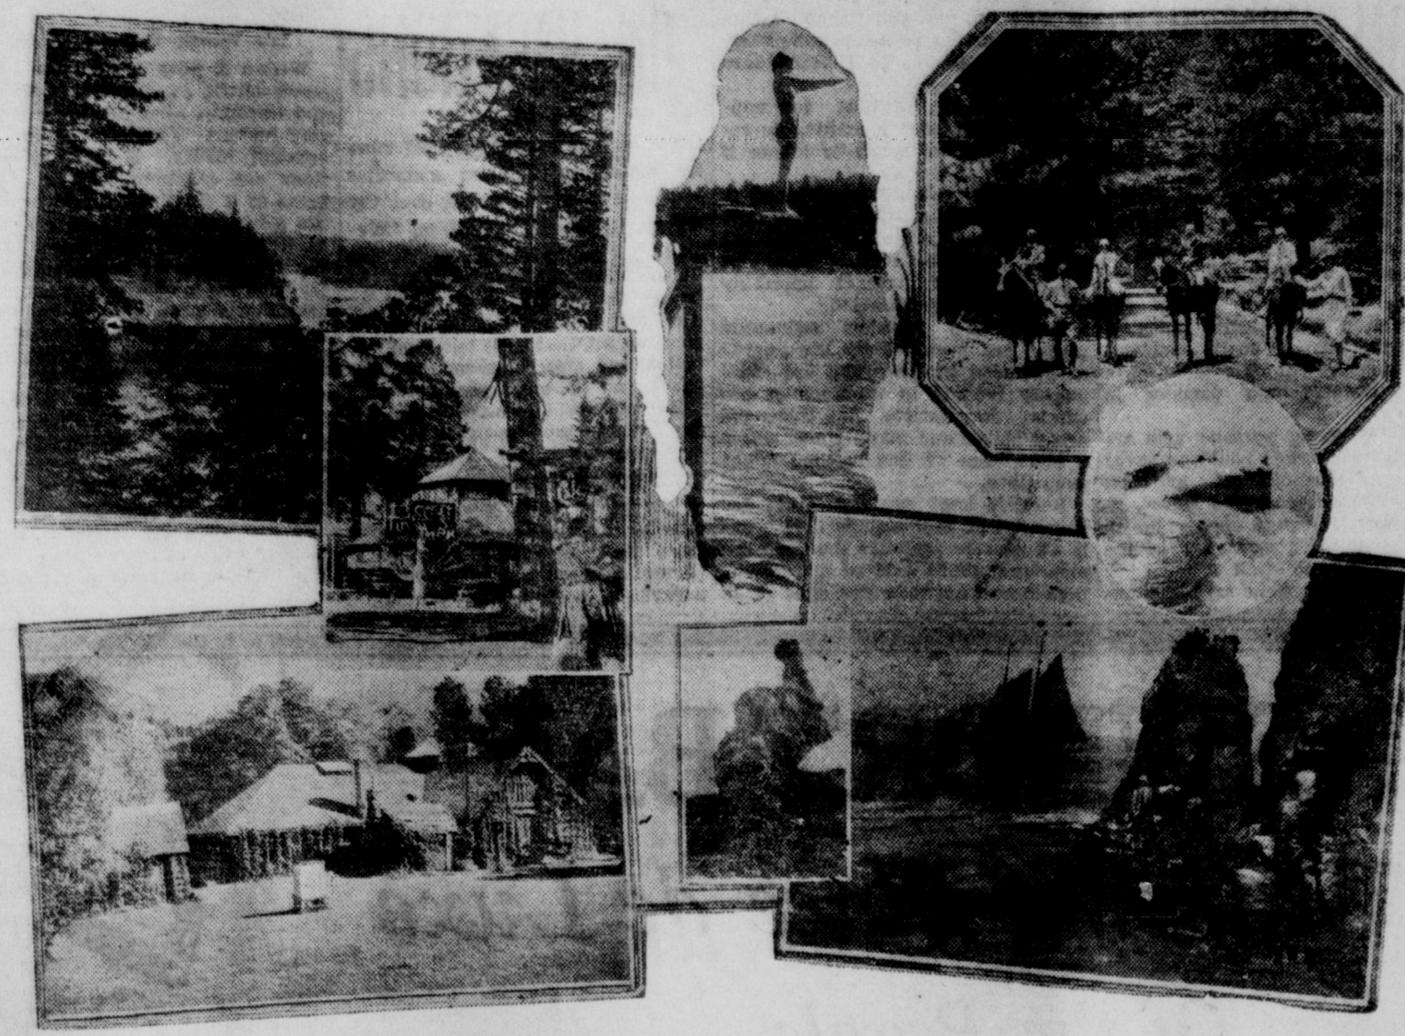

In the old days there would have been plenty of work. Farm chores, most likely. Or odd jobs around the house and stable. But twentieth century household appliances have eliminated this and most of us don't live on farms today. If you except running errands, there's not much in the way of chores to be done. Of course there are always outside jobs. For the older children they offer a fine solution. Work that will keep them outdoors is best, naturally. But any kind of a job will let them earn some money of their own and will give them a chance to save. John can help Dad at the store or office, or deliver groceries for Mr. Adams or . . . if he is training for football in the fall . . . work on the roads. Yes, and Jane can work too. She can help out down at the Woman's Exchange, most likely. Work is not a disgrace as many modern mothers suppose. Rather is it a tribute to the boy's or girl's desire to be accomplishing things.

Gardening is a Solution

But there are many, many other activities that will keep a vacation from being monotonous for children and a worry to mothers. A garden, for instance. Constructiveness, utility and perhaps profit, all rolled into one. Naturally, it should be started early . . . before vacation begins. Once you get the child interested in his own garden, the chances are that he will need no further pressure to keep him going. Actual experience with seeds, soil and cultivation will lay groundwork for a fascinating hobby that will offer relief from tedium in later years.

Academic work learned during the regular school term may be supplemented during summer vacation by such non-curricular work as nature study, woodcraft, forestry, elementary applied agriculture or by "field trips" to places of historical, geographical or geological interest. Such "study" permits the child to be out-doors and still to find concrete application of the subjects he has learned out of his text-books.

Such "formalized" play and study is not necessary however. After all, the important thing is that the child

BARBECUE WAS REAL FEAST IN GOOD OLD DAYS

Auld Lang Syne it may be well to put down just what a barbecue did mean in those halcyon days; especially since it is an event that may well be enjoyed this current vacation season.

For one thing it dates back to pioneer days. "Barbecue," as celebrated in the old South usually meant a large party of care-free folk setting out in buggies or farm wagons to a nearby wooded site. After games and berry picking the holiday folk usually returned to find a large pit dug in the ground. Great logs of hickory were placed in the bottom of this excavation and ignited, a large bar of green wood or iron was set upon trestles over the pit, and upon this improvised spit was impaled a calf, a hog or often a whole heifer.

To the accompaniment of banjo music the handle of the spit was turned, usually by an enterprising darky, and the tantalizing smell of roasting meat, rising clear to the tree tops, served to increase the hunger of those assembled. The hot, roasted meat was washed down by copious drafts of a beverage long forbidden in these modern times—beer and ale.

The clam bake was as popular on the Atlantic seaboard as the barbecue was in the South. It has been recorded that as many as 5000 claims have been consumed at one large gathering. Considering the tremendous appetites of our forebears, it is easily understandable.

It may be well to call to mind a few modern substitutes for the barbecue and the clam bake which are currently popular on week-end picnics and motor trips—steak fries, fish fries and chicken fries representing the efforts of those whose appetites are large, while, to a great extent, a camp fire means a frantic search for willow sticks upon which to impale hot dogs and marshmallows. Perhaps these less elaborate culinary efforts in the woods are due to a desire with most of us to spend as little time as possible in any one place. A whole day in one spot in the woods would mean boredom. We want to feel the gas pedal underneath our feet and the steering wheel in our hands as quickly as possible, and although a meal in the woods—back to nature—is ostensibly the purpose of most motoring jaunts, it is really only an excuse to drive as fast as we can to a town 100 miles away so that we may be able to drive back to our base by nightfall, and to arrive home happy in the thought that we have worn ourselves out in a frazzle, but have avoided the watchful eye of the speed cop!

Federal Government In Suit Over Radio Patents

INVENTORS ARE DEFENDANTS IN COURT CONTEST

Both sides of the controversy now started over the patents obtained by Percival D. Lowell and Francis W. Dunmore six years ago, for operation of radio receiver and speaker from alternating current, have given their contentions in the legal battle over ownership of the patents.

The federal government started suit in Brooklyn, N. Y., against the two men, asserting that the inventions were made while they were working for the government, in 1922, and are government property.

Success attended the two men's efforts, they applied for and received the patents, and rights thereunder were purchased by the Dubilier Condenser Corporation, one of the present defendants, and the Morkrum Company, another licensee, also defendant. The government is suing for a court order to compel the transfer of the patent rights to it.

The patents are held to be highly valuable, because they refer to the B eliminator feature of the modern AC receivers, whereby the alternating current is rectified and filtered, making the elimination of B batteries successful.

The two men were employed by the Bureau of Standards, Department of Commerce, and completed their experiments with apparatus and materials that were the property of the government, besides receiving pay to work out the very inventions that emerged from their labors, is the federal contention.

These facts of use of apparatus and material, and receipt of pay for the very work accomplished, constituted in legal effect payment for and predisposition of whatever patentable inventions might result, the government contends.

The Dubilier Corporation relies heavily on a decision rendered in its favor in its suit against the Radio Corporation of America, in the Federal District Court in Delaware. The validity of the patents was sustained. Radio Corporation had made the contentions that the patents were dedicated to the public use.

The Department of Justice pointed out the difference between the effect on "first and second parties," the government and the two men on the one hand, and "third parties" as R. C. A. It is claimed that the Radio Corporation was a "third party," the legal phrase for an out-

'JOLLY BILL' AND 'JANE'

Here you see them as they are in the studio—"Jolly Bill" Steinke and "Jane," whose real name is Muriel Harbater. That thing that "Jane" has in her hands is a bellows attached to the spout of a coffee pot which "Jolly Bill" uses to imitate the sound of roaring wind. The sketch was drawn by "Jolly Bill" himself.

BEEMAN TELLS BEFORE THE MIKE

Don Bigelow, heard as orchestra leader over the Columbia chain, is a millionaire's son and rides to work every day in a Rolls-Royce driven by a uniformed chauffeur. No, the young man didn't make his money in the radio game. Few radio stars travel around in Roll-Royces.

When William Robert Orr was just a wee lad he started his wanderings. With his folks he wandered from Windsor, Canada, to Detroit, where his father became general manager of the Detroit

* News. But Bill continued his wanderings, which led him to the U. S. Navy, the Royal Air Forces during the late war, and finally to WJAY, Cleveland, where he is now president of the station. He dabbled in wireless during the war.

Radio is a remunerative field for those who have talent. Witness Peter Higgins, vaudeville tenor, who recently signed with RKO for a salary of $100,000 a year for five years. He will be heard in talkies, vaudeville and on the air.

Peoria, Ill., wants to erect a statue of Amos 'n' Andy right in front of the city hall, pulling down a statue already there to make room for it.

Al Lindberg is ballyhooed from WCFL Chicago, as "The Baby Elephant of Radio." Whether or not Al resembles the elephant in weight or voice is not revealed.

Perhaps a man has no business on a woman's radio hour, but Bert MacGarvey, interior decoration consultant, has. He tells women listeners to WPG's "Woman's Hour" how to decorate their homes every Thursday at 11:30 a. m. EST. This takes place in an informal interview with Ethel Ratay, director of the Atlantic City station's program.

Midwestern fans will remember Carl Rupp when he played a piano at WTAM and WHK, Cleveland. Now he's at WGHP, Detroit, directing the "Captivators" orchestra.

Goldberg Feature On Radio Basis Of $100,000 Lawsuit

"The Rise of the Goldbergs," a sustaining weekly feature sketch over WJZ and networks, has given rise to a law suit.

Mrs. Gertrude Berg, who plays Mrs. Goldberg in the humorous portrayal of the life of Jewish family on New York's Lower East Side, was served with papers in a $100,000 suit begun by Mrs. Sophia Civori.

Mrs. Civori alleges she was to furnish ideas for radio sketches to Mrs. Berg under a partnership agreement, Mrs. Berg to write the continuity. A few sketches were produced under the agreement, the plaintiff alleges.

The $100,000 is coming to her, says Mrs. Civori, because of the use of her brainchild without recompense to her, in the WJZ broadcasts.

BEEMAN TELLS ABOUT MURDER OF ARCHDUKE

L. L. Beeman, Instructor at the Santa Ana Junior College, in his "International Relations" talk over KREG last night, outlined the outbreak of the World War, beginning with the assassination of Archduke Francis Ferdinand, of Austria. His talk, in part follows:

"On June 28, 1914, Archduke Francis Ferdinand, heir to the Austrian throne, and his wife were murdered at Sarajevo, the old capital of Bosnia, where he had gone to witness a military review. The murderers were two young Serbs, Austrian subjects, living in Bosnia, which had been arbitrarily annexed by Austria in 1908. Two attempts to kill the Archduke were made that day. The first was when a bomb was thrown at his machine as he was approaching the city hall where the mayor was to make an address of welcome. The bomb rolled off the back of the machine and exploded under the machine following and seriously wounding one of the Archduke's attendants. After the meeting in the city hall the Archduke asked to be taken to the hospital to see his wounded friend. For some unknown reason the car leading the procession to the hospital got off on the wrong street and had to turn around. As the car in which the Archduke and his wife were riding neared the curb and slowed down to turn, a Serbian youth stepped up and fired into the machine, killing both Francis Ferdinand and his wife. The Archduke remained erect and his wife merely leaned over on his shoulder. The driver continued on and it was some minutes before it was discovered that the royal pair had been killed."

"The question often has been asked why were not greater precautions taken. The Archduke had been warned before he left Vienna that it was dangerous for him to make such a trip that there would be an attempt to kill him. Besides a more dangerous place could not have been found. The city officials were urged to provide more police and military protection after the first attempt but it was not done. Then why was such a blunder made as to require the automobile to slow down and near the curb making it easy for the fiend to do his dastardly deed? These are questions that have not been answered and probably will not be answered.

"Austria suspected much but could prove nothing. Count Berchtold, the Austrian Foreign Minister, sent his trusted private secretary, Count Wiesner, to Sarajevo to make a thorough investigation. Wiesner reported that he could find no evidence that would lead one to suspect that any one connected with the Serbian government could have any connection with the murder plot. However the Austrian government did not make this report public.

"Since that time information has been found that confirmed nearly all of Austria's suspicions and showed that some members of the Serbian government knew about it and that Dimitrovitch, chief of the Serbian army staff, assisted in secreting these murderers across the border and had them armed with bombs and revolvers from the Serbian arsenals. However Austria took all her action without this evidence, as it was not known till after the war was over.

"This murder was a climax to a long feud between Austria and Serbia. This feud had almost led to a general war before, in February, 1914, Pashitch, the Serbian minister, and the Czar of Russia met and laid plans to unite all the Serbs and Croats and form an alliance of the Balkan States for the purpose of breaking up the Austrian Empire. Pashitch said Serbia could put 500,000 well clothed and armed soldiers in the field and that there were 6,000,000 Serbs and Croats within the Austrian Empire ready to revolt, and that he would furnish a soldier from these for every rifle the Czar would furnish him. The Czar said that would be an easy thing to do and further said that there were 3,000,000 Roumanians within the Austrian Empire ready to revolt and join Roumania in a war against Austria-Hungary. Then Pashitch and the Czar discussed the question of a marriage between the Crown Prince of Serbia and one of the Czar's daughters.

"As the two parted the Czar said to Pashitch, 'Greet your king for me and tell him for Serbia we shall do everything.' This was tantamount to signing a blank check. During this very same time Austria alleges she was to furnish ideas for radio sketches to Mrs. Berg under a partnership agreement, Mrs. Berg to write the continuity. A few sketches were produced under the agreement, the plaintiff alleges.

The $100,000 is coming to her, says Mrs. Civori, because of the use of her brainchild without recompense to her, in the WJZ broadcasts.

MICHIGAN GIVEN POLICE LICENSE

WASHINGTON, May 29.—A license to operate a short-wave station for crime detection, 5000 watts day time, 1000 watts night time, on 1662 kc, was granted to the state of Michigan by the federal radio commission. This was not the frequency requested, but an assignment outside of the eight channels primarily reserved for police radio, being between a marine and a geophysical channel.

The issuance of the license relieves a tense situation. Gov. Fred C. Green, of Michigan, asserted that the state had absolute police power, therefore could erect and operate a short-wave police station without federal license, and threatened to do so.

The commission announced that the decision in the Michigan case came under a new policy regarding police radio for states, and that all other states were free to obtain a license without a hearing.

It was pointed out that the actual issuance of a license was necessary before operation would be legal.

To Make Report On Air Survey

Financed for its first year by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and the Carnegie Corporation, the National Advisory Council on Radio in Education has formulated a preliminary report, soon to be released. The object of the council is to develop educational broadcasting. Levering Tyson, of Columbia university, is director.

Co-operation is being received from the committee appointed by Secretary of the Interior Wilbur, and from the trade.

REACHES MILLIONS

The necessity of filling his father's place as a symphony conductor, and a series of lecture-concerts first given for intimate friends, determined the career of Walter Damrosch, pictured below. Millions of adults and children now hear, over the radio, his concerts and talks on musical appreciation.

RADIO ENABLES CONDUCTOR TO 'EXPAND' LIFE

BY PAUL HARRISON
NEA Service Writer

NEW YORK, May 29.—Walter Damrosch, dean of American symphony conductors, is 68 years old, but he never expects voluntarily to retire. During 51 years of public life, a career of breathless and continuous activity that took its toll of his vitality, he has realized all of his old ambitions and has piled up many a triumph. He is, of course, at least moderately wealthy. But the famous musician won't quit. The reason is radio, which he finds has added many years to his life.

"If you asked me four years ago about retiring," he said, "I would have answered yes. No man could stand up to the end of the days under the sort of schedule I was following. Oh, I loved it all right. But I saw the finish of my active career.

"The strain of a series of winter engagements was beginning to tell. I found constant travel very fatiguing. On the average winter tour, by working hard, I was able to appear before about 250,000 people.

"But those were the days before radio. Contrast that figure with what I now accomplish with the National Broadcasting company. Ten million people listen to the General Electric hour every Saturday night. In 84 concerts this season I have reached 340,000,000! Do you see what the radio has done? It has added to my life. It has multiplied many times, my usefulness.

Annexation, Park Tax Favored By Newport Voters

NO OPPOSITION TO 2 PROJECTS ON WEDNESDAY

NEWPORT BEACH, May 29.—Two more important steps in the growth and progress of the Newport harbor district had been accomplished today, according to civic leaders, following elections yesterday, when the voters of this city approved of the annexation to the city of two blocks of land north of the bay and of the levying of a three-cent park tax.

The annexation vote carried almost unanimously, 213 to 7, while the park fund proposal had a comfortable margin, 147 to 74. The lightness of the vote was attributed to the fact that no organized opposition to either proposal had been apparent. Only about one-fifth of the registered voters cast ballots.

The two areas to be annexed as a result of the vote are the land across from the northwest corner of Balboa island, leased to J. A. Beck by the city for 25 years and now being developed, and another block between the Coast highway and the county channel. Each block contains about 35 acres of land, and the city also acquires jurisdiction over the same area in the Bay which it did not have before.

These two areas are owned by the city and are contiguous to, but outside, the city limits. One result of the annexation will be that the city will not have to pay taxes to the county on the land, which it would have to do if it remained outside. Another will be to bring the two areas within the city building and other regulations.

Both the annexation and the park fund proposals were supported by the Newport Harbor Chamber of Commerce, women's clubs and other civic bodies. A city beautification program will be undertaken when the park fund is available. It will amount to about $4500 a year at present valuations.

Two precincts, East Newport and Balboa, were unanimous for the annexation, and these two also voted most strongly for the park tax, while the city hall precinct also carried it 24 to 10. West Newport was opposed, 22 to 16, and Balboa Island and Corona del Mar voted against it by 26 to 22.

FRECKLES

Tells How to Rid Your Complexion of These Ugly, Rusty Brown Spots

If you freckle easily, yet find these blemishes hard to remove, read what thousands of women do to fade out every last freckle and gain a clear, beautiful complexion. They use Othine and no longer dread the summer sun and winds.

You, too, will find that after a few nights' use of this dainty white cream even the worst freckles have begun to disappear while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than an ounce of Othine is needed to clear the skin of these ugly blotches.

Be sure to ask at any drug or department store for Othine double strength. It's always sold with guarantee of money back if it does not remove even the worst freckles and give you a lovely, milk-white complexion.—Adv.

BARRACUDA BITING OFF NEWPORT BEACH

NEWPORT BEACH, May 29.—Barracuda, bonita and other varieties of game fish are so plentiful off Newport and Balboa these days that anglers can hardly dodge them, according to those who have cast their bait upon the waters this week.

Two men on the Daisy, one of J. B. McNally's Thistle line, hooked 147 fish in a couple of hours yesterday, barracuda and big bonita. McNally himself, sailing the Dandy, hooked one 10-pound bonita, and his party got about 25 others, averaging seven or eight pounds apiece.

The bonita are bigger than they have been for several years, it is said.

The Dundee, new de luxe boat, was scheduled to take a party of Hollywood anglers out today.

Tells Plan For Show Publicity

ANAHEIM, May 29.—"Orange Show Publicity" was the subject chosen for the main address by Franklin Howatt at the regular meeting of the Toastmasters club at Elks clubhouse Tuesday night. Howatt outlined a plan which he thought would aid the California Valencia Orange show, maintaining that publicity should be concentrated in Orange county and surrounding counties. Money should not be spent on advertising in distant states, he declared. His belief was that this would be a cheaper and more effective plan and one that would secure better attendance.

ORANGE MEETS ANAHEIM BALL CLUB TONIGHT

Whether night baseball will out-draw the beaches on a holiday will be determined for the first time tomorrow when all National league teams but Orange and Anaheim follow their regular Friday schedule routine rather than move their games ahead.

George Lackaye leads his Orangemen to Anaheim tonight and this one, coming on the eve of Memorial Day and being the only game of any importance in the county, is expected to draw heavily.

Santa Ana's Stars, looking something like their 1927-28 selves, invade Huntington Beach tomorrow night.

Other contests scheduled Friday are Whittier vs. Garden Grove at Garden Grove; Olive vs. Fullerton, and Long Beach vs. La Habra at La Habra.

Manager Lackaye plans to use his no-hitter pitcher, Gene Hitt, against the Valencias. Hitt snuffed out La Habra without a blow two weeks ago and turned in some airtight relief pitching against Huntington Beach last Friday.

The Orange club is composed largely of Santa Ana pastimes and a big delegation of home fans plan to form a rooting section for Lackaye's outfit. Bill Middlebrook, Walt Jordan, Gene Hitt, "Rusty" and Warren Sullivan, "Whitey" Pea, Johnny Lutz, "Hen" Thierry and Ed Daley are just a few of the local boys on the Orange roster this season.

Assail British Management Of Golf Classic

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, May 29.—(INS)—Players of all nationalities assailed the institution of golf at St. Andrews today with bitter complaints about both the condition of the course and the manner in which the British amateur golf championship was being conducted.

They were united in expressing the opinion that the fairways were rough and unkempt to a point that the smallest, most obscure club would find intolerable and that the management of the galleries had gotten completely out of hand.

Near stampedes have occurred when crowds that were following an outgoing group clashed with those trailing an incoming pair, the result being that play frequently has had to be suspended while the surging spectators were rounded up.

Francis Ouimet was forced to wait 25 minutes in this manner yesterday before he could play a shot from a bunker.

BEACH CITY TO FETE SPRINTING CHAMP TONIGHT

HUNTINGTON BEACH, May 29.—The ticket sales committee, with Art W. Frost, superintendent of the Southern California Edison company, as chairman, for the banquet to be held tonight in honor of Alvin Koenig, local high school boy whose fleet feet carried him through the state championship in the 100 yard dash and Southern California titles in the 100 and 220 dashes.

Fellow students of Orange county's "Fastest Human," his school teachers and friends, and service clubs of the city, composed of dignified business men, will worship at the shrine of King Sport and do honor not only to Koenig but to other athletes who have won more honors for the high school this year than at any previous time in its history.

The little east side sprinter is not a one-sided student. He finishes his school as president of the honor society and has his letter in football as well as track. The banquet will be held at the city auditorium.

James E. Son, director of municipal music, will provide a special music program with his 21-piece orchestra. There will be a number of short talks, including one by Harry Shee, high school coach who has trained Koenig through four years at high school and developed him into state high school champion.

In appreciation of the advertising the city received through the activities and success of the school athletes, the chamber of commerce purchased through President Willis R. Osborn, 40 tickets for the banquet.

Berglund Favored Over Gomez

'SWED' PICKED TO K.O. RUGGED RIVAL TONIGHT

By RINGSIDER

Type can't whip a fighter but the cold, calculating metal doesn't give Paul Gomez a chance in a dozen of beating Milford ("Swede") Berglund in their main event at the Orange County Athletic club here tonight.

Gomez is rugged and honest and a fair body puncher but it is doubtful whether he belongs in the same square with a boy of Berglund's ability.

It past performances mean anything at all, Berglund will punch the clock early. Records say he will box the ears off the Anaheim Mexican and knock him out inside of the six rounds they are supposed to navigate.

This will be Berglund's second bout at the Delhi arena. The Swede started two weeks ago against an obscure fellow named Mickey McLaughlin and stopped him in a round but not before dazzling ringsiders with his speed and sharpshooting. Gomez is hotter stuff than McLaughlin but will be lucky to escape a similar fate.

Fresh from victories over chaps like Tommy Elks, Arizona Joe Rivers, Johnny Adams and Tommy Huffman, the younger, faster and smarter Berglund figures in every way over Gomez who gets the assignment tonight only because in the absence of Zenaydo Chavez and Joe Reese and the ineligibility of Jimmie Rivers and Romeo Lemon, he happens to be the best available Orange county welterweight.

The rest of the card shapes up better than the main event.

Jimmy Black, flashy colored featherweight, meets Herman Placentia of Santa Ana in the six-round semi-windup. Johnny Jordan and Louie Medina, bantams, go the same distance in the special event.

Black and Jordan are favored, but they are not leadpipe cinches like Berglund.

Experience should carry Black to victory over the slow but determined Placentia boy who is getting his initial chance in the first flight at Promoted Foust's arena.

Black is fast and clever but Placentia punches much heavier and has a chance for a knockout. The dogs say Black, however.

Medina appears to be a little outclassed by Jordan and will do well to linger the distance with the fast-moving Orange bantamweight.

In the other bouts we guess Max Hernandez over Walter Long, Pat McDonald over Cruz Brino, and Adolph Aguirre over Pete Engels.

The foreign threats include Joe Caccia's Alberti, Boravacchini's Maserati, and Cucinetti's Maserati. The race carries more than $100,000 cash prizes and numerous trophies.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 29.—Thirty-eight cars which have qualified for tomorrow's 500-mile race at the Indianapolis motor speedway were being groomed here today.

Entries closed last night with eight additional drivers qualifying yesterday for the event. Thus the field was made the largest since 1911.

This year the maximum piston displacement for engines was raised to 366 cubic inches; last year it was only 91 1/2 inches. Cars in this year's race must carry two passengers, and super-chargers have been ruled out.

Two former winners of this race are entered. They are Peter De Paolo, driving a Duesenberg Special, who set a course record with an average of 101.13 miles an hour when he won in 1925, and Louis Meyer, driving a Sampson Special, 1928 winner.

The foreign threats include Joe Caccia's Alberti, Boravacchini's Maserati, and Cucinetti's Maserati. The race carries more than $100,000 cash prizes and numerous trophies.

Snowden Promises To Represent People On Board

ORANGE FRUIT MAN CANDIDATE AS SUPERVISOR

ORANGE, May 29.—Declaring the principle that a representative of a district on the board of supervisors should represent all the people of the district and not a chosen few, James F. Snowden today announced his candidacy for nomination for supervisor from the fourth district.

Snowden has been a citrus grower in this district for the past 25 years and has been an active and successful grower. He was instrumental in the organization here of the Mutual Citrus association and has served as its president.

The candidate is a Shriner and is identified with many other prominent organizations. Mrs. Snowden is one of the real pioneers of the county, having been the daughter of E. F. Greenleaf, one of the first men to practice medicine in Santa Ana and vicinity.

Friends of Snowden today pointed out that his long association with the county and its developments qualifies him for the public office he seeks.

In announcing his candidacy, Snowden issued the following statement to the citizens of the fourth supervisorial district:

"At the earnest solicitation of friends, and in harmony with my own ideas as well, I have decided to be a candidate for the office of county supervisor for this district. In doing this, I feel I should state the purposes in part which will guide my actions if I am elected.

"First, I desire to say, I shall represent all the people of the district, not a few of them to the exclusion of the rest. I shall be guided in decisions for the good of the district, by all the folks, not by a small group of them. All shall be heard in the various matters. In other words, I shall come to you for advice. I am to be your servant, and not the servant of a group clique, faction or individual.

"I know the need of economy on behalf of the taxpayer, and shall continually keep the taxpayer in mind when confronted with any proposed project that means additional expense. To that end, I believe that all purchases of county material or contracts shall be purchased where the largest amount can be obtained for the least possible cost, and that wherever possible all such contracts or purchases of material shall be subject to bids, and that the lowest price for equal goods or services obtained without favoritism.

"There is no man who lives in Orange county who realizes the importance of water and its conservation better than I do. The water problem is a part of my daily life. I would apply the principles to which I have just alluded in the solution of the great problem before us of water conservation and flood control. The board of supervisors concurred some time ago that a more thorough investigation and check-up of all the facts relative to water conservation and flood control in the Santa Ana valley was needed. They employed what I hope are competent engineers for that purpose. I am in thorough accord with the board in this decision and in their action, and shall insist in harmony with these actions if I am elected that this investigation shall be thorough, complete and impartial, so we can unite upon such a program as will insure the cooperation of the voters, without which any program is useless.

"I believe that the best method to insure that the interest of the taxpayer is protected, is to discard secret deals. No disadvantage to the taxpayer can long continue if

ORANGE MUTUAL PLANT TO SHIP 400 CARS FRUIT

ORANGE, May 29.—The plant of the Orange Mutual Citrus association here will ship approximately 325 additional cars of oranges and lemons before the season closes, officials said today. The plant has shipped nearly 75 cars. The plant is now running at normal capacity.

The Almond street plant is using the output off 2000 acres, oranges and lemons, and is shipping two cars a day, confining the shipments to the eastern markets and middle west. Last year this plant exported local fruit but this crop is being sold in American cities only. Employing 70 people in the fields and 75 in the plant, the pay roll will remain about the same during the remainder of the season.

Present prices for the fruit are good compared with last year, and with the color running fair with most of the product, prices are not expected to vary much within the next two weeks. Last year presented a condition of large tonnage but small fruit, whereas this year is quite the opposite, a large fruit but smaller crop.

business is done in the open. Hence I will, as the representative of the people, insist on open negotiation of public business and that all shall be treated alike.

I conceive that Orange county has reached the place where the interest of the entire county must be taken into consideration in planning improvements in any part, and shall, therefore, without recognizing that I am the representative from the fourth district at the same time, consider its needs in relation to the needs of the entire county, and I shall try to take into consideration the needs and rights of cities to a fair share of funds available, as well as the rural sections. I feel that city and country must work together for the development and good of Orange as a whole."

SANTIAGO WILL SHIP OUT 1000 CARS ORANGES

ORANGE, May 29.—One thousand cars of oranges will be the season's output of the Santiago Orange Growers' association here this year, four grades being shipped. The plant, a member of the Orange County Fruit exchange, is now employing close to 100 persons in the groves and 150 in the building on Cypress street.

With an equal distribution of sizes, no surplus of any one size is predicted, say the officials. The quality of the fruit is running fairly good with the color improving daily. Prices are averaging better than last year and excluding drastic changes of any sort, the prices should continue normal. They are shipping about six cars per day and this schedule will be maintained the balance of the season. Shipments are going to the south and east generally, with few cars going to Canada.

This plant packs from 4000 acres and is considered as the largest orange packing plant in the world.

Would you give ...

$15⁰⁰ to option a possible profit of $200 to $500?

Give your dollars a real chance to bring you in a BIG PROFIT ... after you are fully convinced that this remarkable plan is sound and substantial in every way... AFTER you know big profits should be an assured certainty

NOT in Real Estate... NOT in stocks... NOT in bonds or royalties... but a $15.00 speculation that offers you a possibility of BIG PROFIT...and one where the risk has been reduced to the few dollars it will cost you for this profit option.

HERE you should get the FULL EARNING POWER of your money. You put it to work for you in a CREATIVE WAY... with the element of chance and risk in our opinion eliminated for you. We don't need to tell you that properly planted dollars reap BIG MONEY harvests. And to our knowledge ...

You never in your whole life received an offer like this before.

For many years we have been on the lookout for some Natural Resource. We wanted to make money out of its development.

But up until a few days ago we had never found anything in the way of a Natural Resource that had not been grabbed up before we happened to arrive on the scene.

Then, suddenly ... out of a clear sky ... opportunity came knocking on our door!

A friend dropped in to see us. He had just made a trip to the famous oil fields in Kern County. He waxed enthusiastic over new discoveries and new areas now under development.

Our friend's enthusiasm over the development of the new and promising "Weed Patch" area also failed to arouse our curiosity. Not because we would not like to be interested, but because we knew it to be controlled by the major oil companies, such as the Shell Company, Standard, Texaco, Richfield, and others. Frankly, we were bored, but polite.

Finally ... our friend said ... "How would you like to buy 80 acres right in the very heart of the big Shell Company leases, 40 acres on which you will be free to drill your own wells, and 40 acres on which the Shell Company holds a lease, the latter parcel being a part of a 340-acre lease held by them? The Shell Oil Company is drilling a test well in the field, now down over 3,500 feet, and with a good showing of oil formation."

When our friend said that ... you should have seen us sit up and take notice!

We understood that the entire field was controlled by the big companies ... that nothing was to be had ... but here was a chance to sit in on a tract right in the middle of this new field. We said, "Say that again."

"That's a fact," our friend continued. "I couldn't believe it myself when I first heard it. So you can bet your last dollar I didn't lose any time getting up to the 'Weed Patch,' and I succeeded in tying up this property. The Shell test well is down over 3,500 feet, and looking fine. If it comes in, as I believe it will, with a BIG GUSHER ... and room for plenty more gushers ... we're all set. Yessir-e! We get our share of one-eighth of the royalty from every well drilled on the 340 acres. Just think, practically one-eighth the royalty from scores of wells! In addition to that we have 40 acres to drill ourselves, and from which we would have 100% of the oil and gas."

That was different!

So we said, "What's the rest of the story?"

"Well, a few of us got together and formed a company, the Security Petroleum & Royalty Corp., Ltd. This is a California corporation operating under a permit from the State Corporation Commissioner of the State of California. It is capitalized for one hundred thousand ($100,000) shares of stock with a nominal par value of ten dollars ($10.00) per share. This corporation purchased the 40 acres on which the Shell Oil Company holds a lease, it also purchased the other 40 acres not leased, and on which the company could drill itself and retain all of the oil and gas produced therefrom. Our next step was to arrange financing for the purpose of drilling on this 40 acres.

"We immediately negotiated with the Atkins Realty Co., who agreed to raise the money necessary for this purpose. We considered ourselves very fortunate in making this association because of the outstanding success and reputation of the Atkins Realty Co.

"The problem the Atkins Realty Co. had to solve was to find some way in which their clients could participate in the possible profits of the company without making an investment until the properties held by this company had been proven of greater value, and until the field in which the properties of the corporation were located had been proven as an oil-producing field. Before they would permit one of their clients to invest a single dollar in the company, the Atkins Realty Co. demanded that the field be proved and the value of the holdings of this corporation definitely determined. The solution of this problem was the Atkins Profit Option Plan.

The most remarkable plan you ever heard of in your whole life. Now let us tell you what these Atkins Profit Options are.

Under the Atkins Profit Option Plan you option ten (10) shares ($100.00) of the capital stock of the corporation for Fifteen Dollars ($15.00). You are then issued an option in which the company obligates itself within the period of the option (or until October 15, 1930) to deliver to you, AT THE ORIGINAL PRICE, the ten (10) shares which you have optioned. You then sit back and await developments in the field. The Shell Company should bring in their well within this period of time. When they do it is reasonable to presume that the holdings of this corporation, and consequently its capital stock, should be of far greater value than at the present time. YOU MAY THEN EXERCISE YOUR OPTION AND RECEIVE CREDIT FOR $1.50 ON EACH SHARE PURCHASED, which sum you have already paid for your option. If the Shell test well is not completed by October 15, 1930, your option is automatically extended until April 15, 1931. You have this extension of time on your option WITHOUT any additional cost whatsoever.

As we told you in the headlines ...

This is not Real Estate,

Stocks, Bonds or Royalties ... but just a simple, easily understood plan that gives you an option on a possible large profit for the small sum of $15.00.

You buy nothing but the option on the possible profits ... until there is a proved added value ... value that will be proved by the Shell Company's own gusher on the "Weed Patch." Till then the most you can be out is the $15.00 it takes to buy this option.

For your protection and to enable you to share in the profits that will be possible when the holdings of the Security Petroleum & Royalty Corporation, Ltd., do increase in value, this unique Atkins Profit Option has been devised. You secure these benefits by OPTION ... WITHOUT MAKING AN INVESTMENT IN THE STOCK.

Under the Atkins Option Plan, your investment is ultra-conservative ... as you are not required to make any investment in the shares until THEIR INCREASED VALUE HAS BEEN ESTABLISHED TO YOUR OWN SATISFACTION. Furthermore, not a single cent of your money will be thrown away by a board of directors intent upon proving up wildcat territory. No board of directors or managers can dictate that your money shall be speculated with in an unproven field.

You must first be absolutely satisfied that the property is ready for your investment before you make it. Until then ... do not make it.

But when you are satisfied that it is ... then you may make your subscription. Unless the increased value is definitely proved and established, you will not be obliged to purchase or pay any further sum.

In other words, if ... during the period of the option ... from YOUR OWN OBSERVATIONS ... and from the development of the "Weed Patch" area ... you are not convinced in YOUR OWN MIND that a large profit is yours ... THEN YOU ARE UNDER NO OBLIGATION TO PURCHASE ANY OF ITS STOCK. But, if you are satisfied that it has BECOME MORE VALUABLE you may purchase it at its ORIGINAL PRICE.

Could anything be fairer than that?

In addition ... remember, THESE OPTIONS ARE NEGOTIABLE.

When the increased value of the holdings are PROVED AND ESTABLISHED ... your OPTION ITSELF should also become more valuable. YOU SHOULD BE ABLE TO REALIZE A PROFIT FROM THE SALE OF THE OPTION WITHOUT BEING OBLIGED TO EVER BUY ANY OF THE STOCK.

This is the one and only opportunity you will have to share in the profits with the small investment that it takes to buy the option.

If you want to turn a few spare dollars ... which you now spend ... into a chance for BIG PROFITS ... you should take advantage of this offer. But you can't do it if you think big profits are out of your reach ... or if you think financial success was never meant for you. If you want to WIN ... and WIN BIG ... if you are earnestly seeking a start to wealth ... then this is the very offer we believe you have been waiting for.

You will either win ... and win big ... or you will be out just $15.00 that you would spend anyway.

Don't think for a moment you can't afford it. The fact is ... YOU CANNOT AFFORD TO PASS IT UP! It is ONE opportunity we know of that may let you share in a fortune ... a fortune other people are spending thousands and thousands of dollars to make possible for you.

But you'll have to act ... and act now!

This is positively the last time this advertisement will appear ... you can't wait ... you must not delay ... you must make your decision now ... today ... or this opportunity will be lost to you forever.

The cost is small ... the profits may be BIG. And, frankly, in our opinion, the profits will soon be flowing into the pockets of folks who have the foresight and the courage to accept it now.

Will you be one of them?

The greatest risk you assume is the few dollars you put into this profit option. We believe the profit-making possibilities are far beyond anything you have ever heard of. Just consider the facts about the Atkins Option Plan ... and we know you will agree that it is the fairest, squarest, cleanest-cut money-making offer you ever had put up to you.

This is the first and the last time this ad will appear.

If you want to profit by the opportunity it presents, send in the coupon below, and attach your check, bank draft, money order or cash for $15.00 and we will send you an option for ten (10) shares with a nominal par value of $100.00. This is the ideal speculation, because under the Atkins Option Plan you CANNOT BE OUT OVER $15.00 ... while there is a PROFIT POSSIBILITY FAR BEYOND YOUR EXPECTATION.

Get your order in the mail

today ... all orders will be filled in the order of their receipt ... so don't wait ... don't hesitate ... you will

National Head Of Legion Auxiliary Brings Message

MORE THAN 300 PERSONS AT LUNCHEON HEAR ADDRESS BY MRS. MARY VIRGINIA MACRAE

Fully converted to the gospel of preparedness, and so capably equipped with ammunition in the form of well-assembled arguments and forceful statements that she is ready with a machine gun volley of reasons that seems able to overcome any force allied against her, Mary Virginia Macrae, national president of the American Legion auxiliary, yesterday addressed the various units of the county, representatives of other Southland units, American Legions and allied bodies, and service club heads of this city. The occasion was a luncheon given at St. Ann's Inn in her honor by the Santa Ana American Legion auxiliary.

Over 300 auxiliary members and their guests listened with appreciative attention to Mrs. Macrae's excellent talk, and heard with extreme interest her personal views regarding such preparedness teachings as are embodied in the R. O. T. C.

Favors R. O. T. C.

"I believe fully in the R. O. T. C. and am proud that it is a compulsory course in my home city (Waterloo, Iowa,) for I believe that our boys should be taught to take proper care for themselves in the eventuality of war. We women who have seen what the World War did for our husbands and sons, would never again stand for youths to go from our town as unprepared as they were at that time. The R. O. T. C. teaches them how to care for themselves in every particular, and furthermore teaches respect for constitutional authority."

"No one can say that there never will be another war. We women do not want another war and will do everything in our power against it, but we ask this from our country—that our men shall never again be sent out for slaughter as they were once. If we permitted it, doing nothing to prevent, we would be guilty of murder."

Back of Legion

In concluding her address, Mrs. Macrae stated that the auxiliary stood back of the Legion 100 per cent in its legislative program, and spoke especially of the resolution advocating a universal draft, which the Legion was asking and which had already been presented to Congress.

"Universal draft would bring about peace quicker, more quickly and more thoroughly than any measure I know, for there isn't a country that would be mad enough to attack the United States under such conditions. Unpreparedness never kept us out of war for one moment. Now we ask our country to try its opposite. A man who is well-equipped and trained to take care of himself under all conditions, commands the respect of his fellows. He is not getting into trouble just because he is able to protect himself if trouble should arise, nor is there anyone so rash as to insult or attack him. If it applies to a man, why not to a nation?"

For Mrs. Macrae's entertainment at the Inn, tables were arranged with flowers in auxiliary colors of blue and gold, with favors to harmonize, corsages of pink roses and of sweet peas for other special guests. An interesting program was given following her formal welcome to Santa Ana, voiced by Mayor Frank L. Purinton. This program included the choruses, "Pale Moon," "Happy Days" and "Taps," sung by the Santa Ana Auxiliary Glee club with "Old Folks at Home."

TUSTIN POOL TO OPEN NEXT MONTH

TUSTIN, May 29.—Opening of the high school plunge will feature summer activities in Tustin this year. The pool, which will be opened to residents of the Tustin district shortly after school is finished, is expected to prove a mecca for patrons. The pool was extremely popular last summer, being filled to its limit each time it was opened. Date for the opening will be announced later.

BACK PLANS OF WOMAN'S CLUB FOR NEW PARK

YORBA LINDA, May 29.—A community project for the beautification of the whole Yorba Linda tract has been started by members of the Woman's club of Yorba Linda, the farm center and the chamber of commerce.

Following the 6:30 o'clock dinner at which directors of the center, the chamber of commerce, the Yorba Linda Citrus association and their wives were guests, a business session was held which was presided over by Miss Martha Vernon in the absence of the president, Miss Una MacClatchie.

Miss Vernon suggested that the other organizations join in a program of civic improvement, citing the work done by the civics department of the club under the leadership of Mrs. Willits Van Cleave. This committee leased the vacant land opposite the P. E. depot and planted and cared for shrubs, trees and flowers, until a strip of land that was once given over to weeds is now a beautiful park.

Another project suggested was holding an annual flower show, lasting two days, as the affair held the first of May was a decided success in spite of the weather.

The two civic organizations agreed to join in which the Woman's club in both plans and various members discussed the subject. Several plots of land which might be beautified with trees were mentioned and the Woman's club voted to establish a planning committee to confer with the other organizations.

Other business voted on by the club was to change the meeting dates to once a month, on the second Tuesday.

Mrs. Doris Duckman read the treasurer's report for her mother, Mrs. J. A. Small, which showed the following improvements to the clubhouse: new roofing, concrete porch and walks, and the clubhouse painted.

Mrs. Compton of Glendale, a former resident, was speaker of the evening, telling of a recent airplane trip which she and her husband made to Columbus, Ohio, and back, to attend the wedding of their son.

Musical numbers were given by Carolyn and Elvira Pickering, violin and cello, and Irene Stanley, piano. This trio played "Can't You Hear Me Calling, Caroline" and "Springtime in the Rockies." Another trio, members of which are Josephine and Captola Neely, violins, and Doris Smothers, piano, played "Old Folks at Home."

The big event for September 1 will be in charge of the Brea Legionnaires and elaborate plans are being formulated by the committee. The affair will last the entire day with many varied entertainment features carded throughout the program. A large entry list has been secured for the rodeo and prominent riders and mounts are lined up for the outdoor show. The entire county has been invited to attend and be the guests of the Brea post.

SANTA ANA

ENGINEERS OF LEGION POST HERE TO SELL FIREWORKS

Under the auspices of the Santa Ana post of the American Legion, stands to be erected in all of the larger towns of Orange county immediately, for the sale of fireworks for the Mouth of July celebration, it was announced today.

The work is being done under the sanction of the local post by members of the Santa Ana post's Engineering Club met for the annual banquet of the year, which was held at St. Ann's Inn, last night.

The club members gave the banquet in honor of their parents and also invited all past presidents of the organization since the group was organized by Herbert Alleman 10 years ago. Making novel place cards, a 16-page booklet giving the history of the club, all officers and members, the constitution and other interesting material was at each place. The book had a gold cover with blue printing, following out the colors of the club.

After the chicken dinner, Norman Paul, president and toastmaster, conducted a regular business meeting. It was announced that an initiation for new members will be held at Corona Del Mar on June 4. An election of new officers was held, resulting in the choice of Paul Jacques, president; Alex Clark, vice-president; Ed Hill, secretary; Hideo Higashii, sergeant-at-arms and William Friend and Bob McFarland, business managers.

Merwin Carman gave the first speech, a description of the history of yachting in the world and detailed information on the International Cup races to be held at Newport, R. I. this year. Fred Eley was the next speaker, talking on "Chemistry and Sugar." He showed the various experiments with plans to find new sources of sugar. Clayton Kaps gave the concluding student speech with an instructive discussion of turbines, including the water, steam and compressed air types.

Approximately 100 pupils are planning to participate on the program, to which attendance of the public will be cordially welcomed. Following an annual custom of the local conservatory, grade certificates will be presented to advanced students on this occasion.

Program numbers will include an impressive ensemble of 50 violins, by pupils of Elwood H. Bear, head of the violin department of the conservatory, and a number by a singing quintet composed of Roy George, Frank Lansdowne, C. E. Walker, Harry Garstang and Dr. K. H. Sutherland, and an address by the Rev. Walter S. Buchanan comprised the program. Col. M. B. Wellington officiated as chairman.

"Backward and Forward" was the subject of an excellent address by the minister. He pointed out that progress is made by sacrifice and instanced the progress of the United States since the Revolutionary war as having been made possible by sacrifices by those involved. Development of the plane, he pointed out, has been made at the sacrifice of lives.

Music by the orchestra, vocal numbers by Maurice Phillips, accompanied by Harry Garstang, and a number by a singing quintet composed of Roy George, Frank Lansdowne, C. E. Walker, Harry Garstang and Dr. K. H. Sutherland, and an address by the Rev. Walter S. Buchanan comprised the program. Col. M. B. Wellington officiated as chairman.

The Conservatory Junior Violin quartet will participate, as will also a novel string trio composed of three tiny but talented young girls, little Miss Sylvia White, Barbara Robinson, and Marilyn Bear, all under eight years of age.

Other program numbers will include instrumental selections by pupils from the wind instrument department of which D. C. Clanton, director of the conservatory, is in charge, piano selections by pupils of Miss June Hartman and Guy Beyler Williams, and an effective reading by Miss Mary Clanton of the dramatic art department of the conservatory.

Vocal selections by pupils of Margherita Marsden, prominent local singer and voice teacher, will be especially featured. Among these will be the compelling operatic aria "Addio" from Puccini's "La Boheme" which will be offered by Marguerite Baker, who will be remembered for her fine work in the title role in Cadman's light opera "The Belle of Havana," enjoyed here during the recent Music Week festival. The conservatory octette, of which Mrs. Marsden is director, will also participate.

The big event for September 1 will be in charge of the Brea Legionnaires and elaborate plans are being formulated by the committee. The affair will last the entire day with many varied entertainment features carded throughout the program. A large entry list has been secured for the rodeo and prominent riders and mounts are lined up for the outdoor show. The entire county has been invited to attend and be the guests of the Brea post.

Y. L. I. State Leader Complimented at Banquet

Miss Gertrude Dooley, grand president of the Y. L. I., was honored guest of the Capistrano Institute last night when the group convened at Ketner's cafe for a delightful 6:30 dinner. This was Miss Dooley's official visit to the Y. L. I., and she was heartily welcomed by the 77 members who had gathered for the dinner. The tables were daintily decorated in a variety of pastel-tinted summer flowers, and harmonizing nut-cups were used.

The visit of the grand president is an annual event, and is much anticipated by the local Y. L. I. and members of outlying districts. Delegations from Los Angeles Institute, together with Miss Isabelle Scheiders, their president, and from Anaheim, with Miss Beryl Kennedy, president, were present in a large body.

The Rev. Father Wekenman, acting chaplain of the local institute, the Rev. Fr. St. John O'Sullivan, honorary chaplain, and Father Raymond Smith, chaplain of St. Joseph's hospital, were special visitors and gave brief talks in congratulation of the work accomplished. Miss Gertrude Dooley expressed herself as being much pleased with the accomplishments of the Y. L. I. members and commented on their success.

A delightfully informal touch was given to the banquet when Maralyn and Edwin Maag, and Betty Mae and Tom Engleman, four very charming youngsters, entertained with readings, songs, and a variety of dances.

The banquet was followed by a meeting of the Y. L. I. in the Ebell clubhouse. Initiation of six girls into the Capistrano institute took place. An interesting feature was the work given by the drill team, which has twice won the district cup. Members of the team are Lillian Fitzpatrick, Florence Turnbaugh, Willabelle Block, June Maylan, Marie Rudolph, Marie Forman, Margaret Young, Helen Hitt, Hildegrade Layton, Luvina Schade, Lillian Markel, Catherine Markel, Rose Colombini, Aleme Colombini, Nelle Colombini, and Veronica Stewart.

Visitors present at the banquet, in addition to the honoree, Miss Dooley, were Miss Katherine Kelly, grand first vice president, the Rev. Father St. John O'Sullivan, the Rev. Father Frederick Wekenman, the Rev. Father Raymond Smith, Mrs. Blair Howe, district deputy of Southern California, Miss Beryl Kennedy, institute deputy, Miss Grace McDowell, Oakland Institute No. 15, Miss Mae Sullivan, Oakland; Miss Margaret McCullough, of Los Angeles; Miss Isabelle Scheiders, president of Los Angeles Institute; and Geraldine Dolan and Beryl Kennedy, of Anaheim.

Decorations for the banquet were in charge of Mrs. Stella Engleman, Katherine Maag, Ethel Brown, Rose Heim and Miss Anna Klatt. Refreshments following the meeting were served by Mesdames William Castler, Frank Koff, Jules Markel, Clair Forder, and the Misses Helen and Genevieve Klatt.

Stephenson Speaks To Club Members On Early Days

Terry Stephenson was speaker at the "California Day" of the Brea Woman's club this week, giving many interesting details of the history of this particular section of the state.

Stephenson was introduced by Mrs. T. L. McFadden of Placentia, county chairman of history and landmarks.

"Beginning with the time when Indians lived on the shores of California, the speaker told of the Portola expedition which included among its members Francisco Ortega, Jose Antonio Yorba, Padre Crespi and Padre Gomez. In 1769 this expedition reached what is now Orange county.

Coming down from the Trabuco canyon they saw a broad plain which they named Santa Ana because it was discovered on the day when they were celebrating St. Ann's mass. They camped on the banks of a river, which was given the name of "Rio de Jesus de Temblores" because of the earthquakes which occurred that day. This name was later changed to Rio de Santa Ana, a more fitting name for later years," the speaker said.

"The expedition went north to San Francisco, and soon returned to San Diego," said Stephenson. "Missions were founded at San Francisco and Monterey, then at San Gabriel and San Juan Capistrano.

Sergeant Yorba and another soldier named Peralta, married sisters, daughters of the great explorer Pablo Riccardo, and settled on the first land grant in California, the Rancho de Santiago de Santa Ana, which reached from the mountains to the sea.

"Other ranches were taken up and then began the days of the dons, when trade in hides and tallow began to be developed with the east. Americans and English began to come in, and because of the unrest many were in favor of being governed by another country.

"General Kearny and Commodore Stockton were in charge of the American forces which were opposed by General Andreas Pico. Don Juan Forster of Capistrano helped the Americans and through his efforts they were victorious.

"In 1868 the great Rancho Santa Ana was broken up, and the towns of Santa Ana, Tustin, St. James, Carlton, Fairview and others were founded. Many of these towns disappeared into oblivion when the boom broke and are now unknown. Others have prospered, and since 1900 the great co-operative organizations have been formed, pumping plant systems developed, oil was discovered, and a great tide of population has rolled in until this is now the most prosperous section of the country," declared Stephenson.

A feature of the afternoon was a pour shower for the health camp, and excerpts from the annual report of the health camp were read by Mrs. Schweitzer. It was announced that the Brea club was one of the few clubs of the county which had gone above 50 per cent of their quota in the sale of Christmas seals.

Mrs. Schweitzer announced that the community chorus would sing at the high school baccalaureate service June 8, and that club members were invited to join rehearsals taking place Tuesday evening at the high school.

Next Tuesday the music section of the club will meet with Mrs. Brown at 2:30 and members of the dramatic and literary sections will be entertained.

Club Members Are To Visit Library Tuesday

Plans for Wrycenda Maegden members to visit the Huntington library are now complete, it was announced Tuesday evening at the regular club meeting in the Y. W. C. A. rooms, following the dinner which was served at six o'clock.

The trip will be made Saturday, and a large number of the club members are expected to take advantage of this most enjoyable excursion.

The program Tuesday evening consisted of a little play directed by Miss Mable Pruitt, "The Budget Ghost," as one of a series of presentations which the members have been giving recently.

This operetta is said to appeal both to grown ups and children.

In its development a group of "real boys" form a center of attraction in the forming of a club for the "Correction of Mothers."

They plan to steal out at night and frighten their mothers. In doing so, they are stolen by the smugger, but the Fairy Queen (Marjorie Vollmer) comes to the rescue.

Business concluded was the erection of a hostess committee consisting of the Misses Helen Roberts, Nema Teague, Hattie Bell Wall, Josephine Wagner, Melvina Woodfill, Violet Rubins, Sue Berg and Mina Holland. It was also announced that there will be a cabinet meeting Sunday, and an election of officers at the next club meeting on June 3.

Officers For Section Chosen at Final Session of Year

The members of the Current Events section of Ebell met yesterday in the home of Mrs. Charles Marble, 2022 Greenleaf street, for a 1 o'clock luncheon. Hostesses were Mrs. Marble, Mrs. Hugh Shields, Mrs. Irene Estes and Mrs. R. V. Langley. The meeting was the last of the year.

Officers for the new year were named and Mrs. Clyde Jenken will continue as leader of the section, having completed a most successful year in this office and Mrs. Claudine Irvine will serve again as treasurer. Mrs. Walter Hiskey will serve as treasurer next year, and Mrs. Charles Swanner will be press correspondent.

Tables were decorated with early summer flowers in slender vases and nut cups and the attractive place cards were in yellow.

At the bridge game in the afternoon first prize went to Mrs. George Holmes and second to Mrs. W. W. Warner.

Those present were Mesdames George Osterman, John Kettler, William Maag, C. H. Lurker, W. W. Warner, Nick Brock, Harvey Gardner, Roscoe Hewitt, G. B. Holmes, Charles Swanner, Clyde Jenken, Walter Hiskey, Fred Newcomb, Claudine Irvine, Miss Louise Tubbs and Harvey Bennett.

Wedding Date Is Told At Family Dinner

At a dinner party given by Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Crawford in Tustin Sunday the announcement of the forthcoming wedding of their daughter, Miss Marjorie Crawford to Leonard Elwin Coffman of Santa Ana, was made, which will take place June 18 at the Presbyterian church in Tustin.

Miss Crawford is a graduate of the Tustin high school since when she has maintained a music studio. Mr. Coffman is connected with the Southern Counties Gas company of Santa Ana.

TO SING IN CONCERT

George Stinson, member of the Santa Ana American Legion post, who is to sing in a concert to be given in the Anaheim amphitheater June 4 with Madame Ernestine Schumann-Heink, was a member of the replacement forces sent to Serbia and Japan. He served two years during the World War in the 633 aero squadron.

Legion Concert Tenor Has Had Colorful Career

A colorful life, no small part of which was that he lived while a member of the replacement forces in Russia, Siberia and Japan, has been the experience of George Stinson, protege of Madame Schumann-Heink, member of the Santa Ana American Legion post and state traffic officer.

Stinson who is known in the Southland as Santa Ana's "Singin' Cop," will sing in a concert with Schumann-Heink, June 4. The diva and other critics have likened his voice to that of Caruso and at the concert he will sing songs which are loved by everyone.

Schumann-Heink became interested in Stinson's career when her attention was called to him by Judge John Landell of San Juan Capistrano, whom the tenor calls his adopted father. Stinson met the opera singer in the gardens of the old mission of Capistrano when she was on a visit to that historic spot and at that time she made arrangements to hear him sing.

Later in San Diego when Stinson sang for her Mme. Schumann-Heink listened with tears in her eyes which overflowed and ran down her cheeks as, greatly moved, she put her arms around his neck and said, "I have found a great tenor."

Stinson has always loved to sing but he curbed his desires in deference to his foster parent's wishes. The influence of his foster parents still persisted when he was in the Philippines islands. The chaplain of the company in which he was enlisted hearing him sing in a soldier quartet, offered to make arrangements for his study in Italy, but Stinson laughed at the idea of making music his career in life. Under the tropical skies of the islands for the first time in his life the young singer was encouraged to cultivate the gift of song and it is to this period of his life that he traces the awakening of his first ambitions to become a great singer.

Planting mines along the coast, fighting mosquitoes in the insect-infested swamps, swimming in the warm waters of the South Seas and boxing his way to athletic fame, the young soldier still cherished the dream of learning to sing in a way which would satisfy the longings he could not still.

In Siberia when the chill winds froze exposed portions of the faces of the troops, when long hours were spent in waiting in the long troop trains across the barren steppes, the dream persisted and its fulfillment is deemed but a short distance away by critics who have heard Stinson sing.

The "singin' cop" was but 15 years old when he enlisted in the 633rd aero squadron at Kelly field in 1918. When he was dismissed from the service at the close of the war he re-enlisted in the replacement forces to be sent to Siberia.

Playlet Is Presented By Organization

A short playlet, "One Sweetheart for Two," was presented Tuesday night as a feature of the Daughters of Union Civil War Veterans meeting in the Knights of Pythias hall. Preceding the program, was a most delightful dinner served in the dining room which had been made beautiful with a variety of multi-colored summer flowers. The Sons of the Veterans were in charge of this feature, while the Daughters had planned the interesting program which followed it.

Taking part in the little playlet were Mrs. Eva Pieper, who enacted the role of a much pursued young man; Mrs. Geraldine Beals, the aunt, and Mrs. Edith Moore, the niece, who were the pursuers.

Charles Hill sang a vocal solo, while Miss Emalma Richards presented a violin solo accompanied by Miss Carrie Seaton.

Dance Is to Be Semi-Formal

The latest in collegiate dances is the next big event now being planned by members of the Las Meninas service club of Santa Ana junior college. The dance, under the chairmanship of Miss Esther Guyton, will be a semi-formal affair, and will be given in the Visel studios in Orange, June 17. With Everett Idols' Variostimians has been secured for the occasion. Clever decorations will be introduced by Miss Corinne Nelson and Miss Faye Stinson.

At a recent meeting held in the home of Miss Juliette Taylor, Miss Helen Baker and Miss Miriam Samelson were voted as pledges, while Miss Mary Ford was elected as pledge mistress. One of the unique and original ideas of the organization is the adoption of bracelets, bearing the Meninas crest.

Horace Snow, 1513 Spurgeon street, has returned to his duties at the Baker bakery, after a pleasant vacation with Mrs. Snow and their family, spent in Santa Barbara and nearby points.

Mrs. Neal Beisel, 417 Cypress avenue, has returned from Denver, Colo., where, as retiring president of the Fourth District P.T.A., she represented Orange county at the national Congress of Parents and Teachers held in that city.

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN - PICTURES BY KING

The man who owned the reindeer came and said, "Well, lads, I do not blame you for the way you stare at them. They're quite a pleasing sight. You see but few, I understand, and they are wild, in your home land. But here we need them badly and they're plentiful all right."

"Well, just what do you need them for?" asked Scouty. "Look, here come some more. And, my, what monstrous horns they have. I'd like to own a set. The reindeer all look mild enough and I don't think that they'd be rough. It sure would be a lot of fun to own one."

"Why, say, they are much more than pets," the man replied. "This country gets good milk and food and other things of value all year long. From reindeer skins real clothing's made and it is of a lasting grade. From antlers we make household racks and they are mighty strong."

"The reindeer act as beasts of prey. They earn their food from day to day, and all in all they mean a lot to people living here." And then he told each Tinymite, "Go up and pet one. It's all right. You'll find them very gentle and there's not a thing to fear."

The Tinies then felt very bold and promptly did as they were told. And then the Travel Man said, "Well, hop back into our car, we're bound for Sweden now, you know. I think it best, lads, that we go. A dandy ride's ahead of us, although it's not so far."

They rode awhile and then they saw a sight that filled them all with awe. A tent, made out of reindeer skins, stood on the open ground. Some Lapland tots stood just outside. The Travel Man then loudly cried, "Come on, lads, we will meet them." So the Tinies gathered 'round.

Missing Letter Links

RULES

1. In playing golf on the Missing Letter Links the object is to change one word to another in a given number of strokes which is par. For example, to go from TEE to PIN in three strokes sounds hard but isn't: TEE-TIE-PIE-PIN. It's probably more difficult on a real course.

2. Change but one letter at a time and be sure the word you have used is one in good usage.

3. The order of the letters can not be changed.

BILL TO FARE—Today's BILL OF FARE on the letter links is very simple. It requires but three strokes to shoot the hole.

FARM WORK NORMAL

Spring farm work and crops appearing up to date are going along normally, the U. S. bureau of agricultural economics reports. Spring wheat sowing is near completion, and winter wheat is growing rapidly. Wheat exports are going along slowly, being only half as large this year as they were last year at the same time.

tria was planning to settle once for all with Serbia. In 1913, Austria planned to attack Serbia and requested her allies, Germany and Italy for permission and help. Both Germany and Italy refused. Again in June, 1914, just before the murder of Francis Ferdinand, Austria drew up a memorandum or letter asking Germany if she would help in an attack on Serbia. This letter reviews the plans of the Serbians, Rumanians and Russians to unite the Balkan states in an attack on Austria with the expectation that the Serbs, Croats and Rumanians within the empire would revolt and join them and thus break up the Hapsburg empire. Before this letter was sent to Germany Francis Ferdinand was murdered. A postscript was added to the effect that Austria is now faced with the necessity to break with a strong hand, the threads that her foes are trying to weave into a net about her head. The letter with the postscript was then sent to the Kaiser of Germany.

In March, 1914, Poincare, who was then president of France, said, "In two years the war will take place. All my efforts will be devoted to preparing for it." From this it will readily be seen that war was imminent before the murder occurred and that it would be a general war. Yet the dear people knew nothing about this till after the war was over. This was President Wilson's contention all the time, that the war lords and diplomats and would-be statesmen made the war, not the people, and that if the people had known and had their way there would have been no war. These facts we have learned since the war and after the revolutionists published to the world the secret documents of Russia, Austria, Germany and Serbia. This letter or memorandum mentioned above, together with a personal letter, was sent to the Kaiser, reaching him on July 5. In a dispatch to the kaiser by Tschirsky, the German ambassador in Vienna, he explained to the kaiser that he had urged the Austrian government to proceed cautiously. On the margin of this dispatch the kaiser wrote: "Let Tschirsky be good enough to drop this nonsense. The Serbs must be disposed of, and that soon—right soon." After consulting with his chancellor, Bethmann-Hollweg, the kaiser authorized the Austrian ambassador at Berlin to say to his master, "Should war result between Austria and Russia, Germany would stand at the side of her ally. Let Austria act quickly for this is a favorable moment." Later the kaiser repeated, "Francis Joseph must be assured of German support in case of war." This is the German blank check. The kaiser also declared it was not the business of Germany to dictate to Austria what action she should take but it was Germany's business to prevent the conflict between Austria and Serbia from developing into a European war.

The attitude of Germany is also shown about two weeks later in a long dispatch by Von Jagow, the German secretary of state, to the German ambassador in England. In the dispatch he made clear:

1. That Germany thought that Austria was losing her power and prestige by being too lenient and patient with the Balkans.

2. That Austria must be kept a great power for the interests of Germany and the way to keep her a great power was to have her take a stronger stand against the Balkans, especially the Serbians.

3. That while not dictating to Austria, she will support her in whatever action she takes.

4. That Germany hopes to localize the war, that is confine the war to Austria and Serbia.

5. That Germany believes she can confine the war to Austria and Serbia because Russia is not ready for war and neither England nor France want to engage in a foreign war now.

6. If a general war does break out Germany must fight in self-defense.

7. That Germany attached great importance to secrecy.

To dispel all suspicions against Germany, it was decided that the Kaiser should not abandon his trip on the North Sea. Accordingly he left on July sixth.

"Let's now turn to Austria and see what she is doing. In a letter to the Kaiser, Old Francis Joseph told how the murderer was the direct result of the Russian and Serbian plans to break up his Empire. That the murder was a well organized plot that could be traced to Belgrade, the capital of Serbia. All of which was true but at that time it was merely suspicion. His own investigator could find no evidence that it was true.

"On July 7, a Crown Council was held in Vienna, Count Berchtold reported to this council that both the Kaiser and his Chancellor, Bethmann-Hollweg had assured him most emphatically of the unqualified support of Germany in case of war and that since Russia was planning a coalition of the Balkan States against Austria, the logical thing for Austria to do was to take quick action against Serbia. It was decided to do this. It was agreed to send an ultimatum to Serbia and make the demands in it so strong that Serbia could not accept them and that Austria should begin the mobilization of her troops after the ultimatum had been delivered. The next day, Count Tisza, the chief minister of Hungary, urged the minister of Austria to take more moderate action. Tisza argued that war against Serbia would mean war with Russia and that would mean a world war. He argued that the ultimatum to Serbia should not make war inevitable and thus make it appear that Austria was the aggressor. Count Tisza was overruled and the severe ultimatum was sent. I cite this position of Count Tisza to show that Germany and Austria had no good reasons for thinking that any war between Austria and Serbia could be localized.

It was decided that this ultimatum should be delivered to Serbia on July 23 at five o'clock p.m. This time was selected in order that the contents might not be known to the world before the French president, Poincare, who was then in St. Petersburg with the Czar had left for home.

In order to be certain that Poincare had left St. Petersburg and would have no knowledge of the ultimatum and a chance to confer with the Czar, his ally, the hour of delivery was changed from five to six o'clock p.m.

Although Germany had said she would not dictate what action Austria should take, her Secretary of State, Von Jagow, was continually pressing the Austrian Ambassador in Berlin and the German Ambassador in Vienna for the terms of the ultimatum. On the 18th of July, five days before the ultimatum was delivered to Serbia, Von Jagow told the Bavarian Charge d'Affairs what the demands in the ultimatum were, and the remark was made that, "It is perfectly plain that Serbia can not accept any such demands. The result will be war." Then on the 23rd, this same German official telephoned the German Ambassador in England that he was not acquainted with the Austrian demands. And on the next day he told the Italian Secretary he did not know what was in the Austrian note and did not want to know. On the 25th or 26th he again asserted to the British Charge d'Affairs in Berlin that he had no knowledge of the contents of the Austrian ultimatum to Serbia. On the 21st, two days before the ultimatum was delivered, the German Chancellor sent a note to the German Ambassador in St. Petersburg saying that "neither the procedure nor the demands of the Austrian Government can be regarded as otherwise than moderate and proper. On the next day he sent the same note to London and Paris. How could he tell that the demands were "moderate and proper" when he did not know what they were? All of this goes to prove that the German authorities were determined to keep the friends of Serbia in the dark by means of secrecy, falsifying and denials.

"Now let's see what demands Austria did make in her ultimatum. She demanded:

1. That the Serbian Government should officially condemn anti-Austrian propaganda by her citizens.

2. That it suppress all publications and societies which incite hatred and contempt for Austria.

3. That all Anti-Austrian teachers and books be eliminated from her schools.

4. That public officials implicated in anti-Austrian propaganda be dismissed.

5. That certain officials named by Austria be arrested and punished.

6. That Austrian officials and judges be allowed to come over into Serbia and assist in ferreting out and punishing those implicated in the murder and connected with the anti-Austrian movement.

"Serbia was given forty-eight hours in which to make a favorable reply. To understand the full meaning of this ultimatum, one must bear in mind that at that time Austria was acting entirely on suspicion. She had no evidence that the Serbian government was in any way responsible for the murder. In fact its own trusted investigator had reported so.

"Serbia might comply with the first four demands, but no self-respecting nation could consider for a moment the acceptance of the last two. No nation would think of allowing another nation to name its public officials and have them dismissed on suspicion to say nothing of allowing officials of another country to come into her territory and enforce laws.

EVENING SALUTATION
The limits of the universe are set by the barriers of the minds of men.
—Secretary of Interior Ray

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

As the testimony is being adduced in the $175,000 damage suit against the city of Los Angeles over the Saint Francis dam disaster, it is appearing more and more clearly that civil engineers are not omniscient in their knowledge concerning strata of the earth, the rock and their operations under certain circumstances.

The other day Engineer Mulholland was on the stand, and testified that certain rock at points of the St. Francis Dam would not disintegrate when subjected to water in a "million years." However, a piece of rock, identified by those who secured it as being from the same place which Mr. Mulholland described, was brought into the courtroom. It was placed in water, and disintegrated readily right before the juror's eyes.

Without any question, rock which an engineer supposes will stand up after being subjected to water for any period of time, cannot always be depended upon, for as a matter of fact, it was not true in this case.

When millions of dollars in construction, and millions of dollars of property is endangered, and human lives held in the balance, it is not a question upon which the people ought to bank very strongly, when capable and able engineers differ as to what will happen.

With monumental fortunes wasted, and standing beside wrecked homes and the mangled remains of families, it is no consolation and certainly no real alibi to say: "We believed the engineer and took a chance." The most important thing in the construction of such an engineering project is that of safety, next the full accomplishment of the purpose, and third, the cost.

We cannot understand the spirit or purposes of men who with inadequate investigation, and with projects condemned from the standpoint of safety, as well as high cost, by many men trained on the question, can take chances when human life is at stake. The history of the last fifty years has the story of many disasters to property and human life from the great Conemaugh disaster at Johnstown, to the St. Francis in our own state.

A law in New York holds that a man cannot be arrested for driving while under the influence of liquor if he drives a horse. All they're interested in there, it seems, is auto-intoxication.

A DESIRABLE TRANSFER

All those interested in the enforcement of the law and the Constitution of the United States are glad that the work of the enforcement of prohibition has been turned over to the Department of Justice of the United States. This brings it in the hands of the Attorney-General as the leader, rather than the hands of the Secretary of the Treasury.

We noted the other day that Clarence True Wilson, the head of the Methodist organization of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals said that in the failures of the Department of Prohibition, it was not Secretary Mellon, but President Coolidge, who was responsible. However, Governor Pinchot, whom we believe knows the situation from the national political point of view as well, if not better, than any other man in this country when it comes to the enforcement of the prohibition law, declared in his fight in Pennsylvania that Mellon in the conduct of his office was mainly responsible for the failure of prohibition to function.

Mellon had financial interest in the liquor business prior to prohibition days. Many of the men who were appointed to enforce the law throughout the country by his office were not men calculated to be very much interested in the faithful performance of such a duty. It may be a real matter of opinion as to whether Coolidge was the strong man at the helm, directing Mellon to appoint this class of men, or whether Mellon was stronger than Coolidge, and was doing what he chose, and as some believe, directing Coolidge more than Coolidge was directing Mellon. In any case, the job wasn't done.

President Hoover is determining that it shall be done, and we rather suspect by the fact that he has taken it away from the Treasury Department and put it in the Department of Justice that at any rate he didn't feel that the Prohibition department as it was run, was very faithfully carrying on the work. We are glad that it is united under the leadership of a man who is determined to do it well, and recognizes that the only men who can be counted upon to perform their duty are the men who believe in the law and obey it themselves.

VICTOR HERBERT, THE BELOVED COMPOSER

The sixth anniversary of the death of Victor Herbert, the most popular and the most beloved of all American musicians and composers, was quite generally observed all over the country last Sunday. Some may recall the player of the cello, on which Herbert was an artist of the first order. But now that the strains of his own playing have passed from hearing forever, the music which he composed will continue to be sung and played for many years to come.

Those who listened in on the radio when a large group of his friends and admirers gathered at the Ritz Hotel, in New York, to listen to his music and to hear the words of commendation for the man and his friendships, will not soon forget the tender tone of Gene Buck, the president of the Society of American Musicians, Composers and Authors, and of Augustus Thomas, and others as they referred finally to the personal friendship with the composer. Tears came to the eyes of some who sang his songs, so much were they overcome by the memory of this man who had such wonderful capacities for friendship.

The character of the man was stamped upon his music. Rarely are so many haunted by the musical melodies of the composer. These melodies are a constant delight to great multitudes for whom much of our classical music means little or nothing. To have the memory of such a man recalled on each anniversary of his death is wholesome not only for the great masses who can never enter into the sphere in which he won his fame, but also for those who aspire to enter into that sphere in which as man and artist he won his place among the foremost of American musicians and composers.

GEORGE MUNRO WINNER

George Munro, Santa Ana high school boy, won the final contest of the Presbyterian General Assembly oratorical contest in Cincinnati, Ohio. The four boys, of whom the Santa Ana representative was the youngest, spoke on "Law Observance and Constitutional Loyalty."

The winning of this national contest will serve to awaken some people to the fact that this young boy has been advertising Santa Ana throughout the west, and now the nation in a wonderful manner. He has been speaking on a subject which is of prime importance in a number of elimination contests in which he won the right to represent the Pacific coast states. We, of The Register, take pardonable pride in our part in starting a winner, for George Munro last February won the Orange County Oratorical contest sponsored by The Register. The contestants at that time spoke on "The Citizen's Obligation to the Eighteenth Amendment."

All the news dispatches today will carry the news that George Munro of Santa Ana, California, speaking on "Law Observance and Constitutional Loyalty" won this contest. It is quite customary for athletes entering contests in the east to return home winners. But, just such a winner as George Munro is needed to serve notice on the people in the east that out here we have brains as well as brawn.

We congratulate George Munro, his family and his school. We feel confident that a boy who is today concentrating this thought on the important things of which we should all be thinking, will make a fine mark in the world. "Statesman" will some day be written after his name, if he continues his career as he has begun it.

Let the Army Beware!

Imperial Valley Press

The gentlemen who control the United States War Department have always seemed to be extremely capable and level-headed; but the latest news from Washington makes one wonder if they have not, at last, pulled a colossal blunder.

Briefly, this is what they have done; they have called in the quartermaster general of army to procure for a service test "one mechanical substitute for an army band."

All of which means that a mechanical apparatus built into a three-quarter-ton truck has been devised to furnish the marches, quicksteps and bugle calls heretofore provided by flesh and blood bandsmen and buglers.

This contraption, with one doughboy sitting in the front seat to steer it and another presumably sitting beside him to turn the proper levers and gadgets, would cruise about, supplying music for soldiers on the march, emitting bugle calls and in other ways doing the things that army bands and buglers are supposed to do.

One can only repeat that the adoption of this thing looks like a major blunder.

One of the things that keeps the army alive is the band. Close behind the band, in the matter of morale and inspiration, comes the bugler. There is a thrill in the sight and sound of a good band stepping it off across the parade ground, or marching down a city street at the head of a detachment, that no mechanical contraption in a motor truck can ever supply. The music itself, very possibly, might be just as good as ever; but who could get a thrill out of it if it came mechanically out of a tin horn atop a truck?

And the bugler! There is a picturesqueness about the sight of a bugler standing immobile, horn at lips, rapping out the keen notes that bring soldiers to their formations on the run; a color and brightness that turn the most peaceful of men into militarists for the time being. But suppose these bugle calls hereafter are to issue from a loudspeaker on a truck; what then? Why, even the soldiers themselves will respond half-heartedly.

The whole business looks to us like a great mistake. The mechanical band might be very efficient; but the minute the army adopts it it is in for trouble. It will lose its glamour; and from that moment the end of armies will be in sight.

Jump Frogs Bring Glory to One Town

San Bernardino Sun

A great responsibility rests upon the soul of Mark Twain, who immortalized the story of the jumping frog and thereby started something whose end no man can see.

The other day in Angels Camp, California, a frog champion, "The Pride of San Joaquin," jumped 12 feet 10 1/2 inches, winning great glory for himself and doubtless scads of money for his owner and his betting public.

The high light of the yarn is that there was a gallery of 30,000 spectators assembled to see the contest.

What a busy and serious people we are, to be sure, and how many important things we have to do! We may yet need a frog stadium in every city, with national championship trophies and conventions of jumping frog breeders.

Something Always to Take Joy Out of Life

San Francisco Chronicle

The treasury now has plenty of the new, small-sized paper money on hand, a fact that will make a lot of people envy the treasury. The word has gone forth to banks all over the country to turn in for redemption the large-sized bills as fast as they come to hand. This says a contemporary, means that soon the large-sized paper money will be no more except for such specimens as people put away for curiosities. Fine! But what excites our curiosity is, what will the keepers use for money the day before payday?

Taking the Old Bull by the Horns!

THOUGHTS ON MODERN LIFE

By GLENN FRANK

RELIGION'S DILEMMA

The essence of religion is that it upholds the dignity of the individual.

Religion insists that human personality is the most important thing in the world.

Religion strives to keep the universe warm and intimate and personal.

And the reason that religion is having such a hard time just now is that the world is growing ever more impersonal as two forces more and more take control of affairs.

These two forces are:

Modern intellectualism.

Modern industrialism.

"The plight of religion in our own day," says Reinhold Niebuhr, "is due to the fact that it has been more than ordinarily pressed by foes on the two lines on which it defends the dignity and value of personal and, seemingly, much less amenable to a divine will and to human needs than had been traditionally assumed.

"The applied sciences have created an impersonal civilization in which human relations are so complex, its groups and units so large, its processes so impersonal, the production of things so important, and ethical action so difficult, that personality is not dwarfed and outraged in it.

"Religion is thus obviously placed in a desperate plight when its metaphysics and its ethics are imperiled at the same time."

Here, then, is religion's dilemma.

It is religion's business to buck up the human spirit and help it to rise above the external forces that hamper and harass it, but the two major forces of modern life seem in conspiracy against it.

Modern science is throwing doubt upon religion's metaphysics and modern industry is throwing difficulties in the way of its ethics.

So this is religion's task.

It must invest its intellectual outlook with sincerity and reality in the midst of modern science, and it must give living significance to its ethics in the midst of modern industry.

OUR CHILDREN

KEEP SECRETS

"Kitty, you are certainly the longest tongued child ever I saw. What made you go and tell Mrs. Moon what I said to your father about her last night? Didn't you know any better? Can't you keep a secret?"

"How'd I know it was a secret? You didn't tell me not to tell."

"You tell everything. First thing you know, you're going to get yourself into trouble. Your father will be fit to be tied when he hears you've told that."

"Goodness. If there doesn't go Mrs. Moon's aunt. Well, I am surprised. They must have made up that awful quarrel they had when she got married. Oh, she, Mrs. Moon, married the delivery boy. Yes, he used to be Peter's delivery boy. He's gotten on pretty well, makes a good bit of money, I guess, but her aunt was simply furious and wouldn't have a thing to do with them. Not that she was so much at that. Her father used to make my father's shoes. Guess she wouldn't care to hear about that though. Well, well. To think that she's calling on Clara at last. I must call up Marie. Now you, Kitty, just learn to keep your tongue between your teeth and don't tell everything you know or your father will just about expire."

Certainly not, if you payed more attention to lisssening you wouldn't have so much time for interruptions, ma sed.

They must have made up that awful quarrel they had when she got married. Oh, she, Mrs. Moon, married the delivery boy. Yes, he used to be Peter's delivery boy. He's gotten on pretty well, makes a good bit of money, I guess, but her aunt was simply furious and wouldn't have a thing to do with them. Not that she was so much at that. Her father used to make my father's shoes. Guess she wouldn't care to hear about that though. Well, well. To think that she's calling on Clara at last. I must call up Marie. Now you, Kitty, just learn to keep your tongue between your teeth and don't tell everything you know or your father will just about expire."

So, Kitty lapped up all that gossip as though it were cream. She wouldn't tell the next one she met, not Kitty, unless they asked her. Or unless they seemed not to have heard about it.

Nothing costs so much in friendship and good will as gossip and yet people will indulge in it and such an example to their children as will lead them to gabble and chatter themselves into hot water. It is too bad to allow a child to get into such a habit. It is certain to handicap the child, for gossip leads to prying and prying leads to suspicion, and if there is any mental poison worse than suspicion I've yet to meet it.

Some folk do not gossip about their elders, but they seem to feel it quite right to betray the secrets of their children. They laugh about the childish mistakes. They talk over the little difficulties that arise between childish sweethearts and cause endless embarrassment to the children. They even hold council over the children's mistakes.

It is very unwise to rush to a friend with a tale of a child's misdealing. No matter how friendly a friend may be he is not averse to knowing that you are having trouble with your children. There are few among us who sorrow with those who grieve. While the tale of woe is unraveled we sit smugly within our shielded nook and take comfort in the thought that it is not so with us.

Keep the family secrets to yourself. Treat all knowledge about your children's affairs confidential. Hold your tongue about the affairs of other people save when you can cheer for them. So will your children have faith in you and your neighbors hold you in love.

TODAY IS THE ANNIVERSARY

FALL OF CONSTANTINOPLE

On May 29, 1453, Constantinople, after a memorable siege, was captured by the Turks.

The fall of the city, which was then the capital of Greek civilization and the stronghold of Christianity in the east, marks an epoch in European history. Not only was it a military victory, but a triumph of Mohammedanism over Christianity.

It had a far-reaching effect on history, for, by driving the scholars into Italy from the east, it helped the great revival of learning. In Florence, Lorenzo the Magnificent gathered around him these scholars and revived the writings which had been shut up so long in the east. This revival of letters was called the Renaissance.

During the years that followed the taking of Constantinople, the Mohammedans sought to subdue Christian nations, but after their defeat at the hands of the Poles, desisted.

Prosperity a la Carte

By WILLIAM TRUFANT FOSTER and WADDILL CATCHINGS

Prosperity has an irritating way of disappearing every now and then from the national menu. For dreary stretches, many of us have to get along without the food we like best.

At last we are convinced that this is unnecessary. We now know that foresight and prudent activity on the part of mine host, Uncle Sam, will all but abolish the annoyance.

The principal ingredient of the succulent and nutritive dish is good business. We now know that the Government can insure good business by taking certain steps which are by no means beyond the ingenuity and resourcefulness that have made the United States the richest nation on earth.

First of all, the Government requires facts. Facts about unemployment, of course, as called for in the Wagner bills.

More facts, more promptly collected, are also needed about changes in commodity prices—the prices of everything we eat, or wear, or burn, or ride in. It is easy to measure such changes by means of index numbers, once we have the raw information.

Changes in commodity prices are more meaningful than any other index of business conditions. When that index goes up
